THE WAR POLICY OF THE GOVERNMENT.

Important Speech of President Lincoln to the Virginia Commissioners.

WASHINGTON, April 13, 1861.

The Virginia Commissioners were formally received to-day. They presented the resolutions under which they were appointed. In reply to Messrs. Preston, Stuart and Randolph, the Commissioners, Mr. Lincoln said:—

GENTLEMEN—As a committee of the Virginia Convention, now in session, you present me a preamble and resolution in these words:—

> Whereas, in the opinion of this Convention, the uncertainty which prevails in the public mind as to the policy which the federal Executive intends to pursue towards the seceded States, is extremely injurious to the industrial and commercial interests of the country, tends to keep up an excitement which is unfavorable to the adjustment of the pending difficulties, and threatens a disturbance of the public peace; therefore,
> Resolved, That a committee of three delegates be appointed to wait on the President of the United States, present to him this preamble, and respectfully ask him to communicate to this Convention the policy which the federal Executive intends to pursue in regard to the Confederate States.

In answer I have to say that having, at the beginning of my official term, expressed my intended policy as plainly as I was able, it is with deep regret and mortification I now learn there is great and injurious uncertainty in the public mind as to what that policy is, and what course I intend to pursue. Not having as yet seen occasion to change, it is now my purpose to pursue the course marked out in the inaugural address. I commend a careful consideration of the whole document as the best expression I can give to my purposes. As I then and therein said, I now repeat, "The power confided to me will be used to hold, occupy and possess property and places belonging to the government, and to collect the duties and imports; but beyond what is necessary for these objects there will be no invasion, no using of force against or among the people anywhere." By the words "property and places belonging to the government," I chiefly allude to the military posts and property which were in possession of the government when it came into my hands. But if, as now appears to be true, in pursuit of a purpose to drive the United States authority from these places, an unprovoked assault has been made upon Fort Sumter, I shall hold myself at liberty to repossess it, if I can, and also like places which had been seized before the government was devolved upon me; and in any event I shall, to the best of my ability, repel force by force. In case it proves true that Fort Sumter has been assaulted, as is reported, I shall, perhaps, cause the United States mails to be withdrawn from all the States which claim to have seceded, believing that the commencement of actual war against the government justifies and possibly demands it. I scarcely need to say that I consider the military posts and property situated within the States which claim to have seceded, as yet belonging to the government of the United States as much as they did before the supposed secession. Whatever else I may do for the purpose, I shall not attempt to collect the duties and imposts by any armed invasion of any part of the country; not meaning by this, however, that I may not land a force deemed necessary to relieve a fort upon the border of the country. From the fact that I have quoted a part of the inaugural address, it must not be inferred that I repudiate any other part, the whole of which I reaffirm, except so far as what I now say of the mails may be regarded as a modification.

This notice cannot be misinterpreted, and the fact that the secessionists opened the fight at Charleston before any attempt was made by the government to reinforce or supply Fort Sumter, is viewed here as an attempt on their part to coerce the government, and puts the responsibility upon them.

THE PRESIDENT'S PROCLAMATION.

Seventy-five Thousand Militia Ordered Out—An Extra Session of Congress Called.

Whereas, the laws of the United States have been for some time past, and now are, opposed, and the execution thereof obstructed in the States of South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Florida, Mississippi, Louisiana and Texas, by combinations too powerful to be suppressed by the ordinary course of judicial proceedings, or by the powers vested in the Marshals by law;

Now, therefore, I, ABRAHAM LINCOLN, President of the United States, in virtue of the power in me vested by the constitution and laws, have thought fit to call forth, and hereby do call forth, the militia of the several States of the Union to the aggregate number of seventy-five thousand, in order to suppress said combinations, and to cause the laws to be duly executed.

The details for this object will be immediately communicated to the State authorities through the War Department. I appeal to all loyal citizens to favor, facilitate and aid this effort to maintain the honor, the integrity, and the existence of our national Union and the perpetuity of popular government, and to redress wrongs already long enough endured.

I deem it proper to say that the first service assigned to the forces hereby called forth will probably be to repossess the forts, places and property which have been seized from the Union; and in every event the utmost care will be observed, consistently with the objects aforesaid, to avoid any destruction of, or interference with, property, or any disturbance of peaceful citizens in any part of the country; and I hereby command the persons composing the combinations aforesaid to disperse and retire peaceably to their respective abodes within twenty days from this date.

Deeming that the present condition of public affairs presents an extraordinary occasion, I do hereby, in virtue of the power in me vested by the constitution, convene both Houses of Congress. The Senators and Representatives are therefore summoned to assemble at their respective chambers at twelve o'clock, noon, on Thursday, the fourth day of July next, then and there to consider and determine such measures, as, in their wisdom, the public safety and interest may seem to demand.

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand, and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

Done at the city of Washington, this fifteenth day of April, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and sixty-one, and of the independence of the United States the eighty-fifth.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN.

By the President—
WILLIAM H. SEWARD, Secretary of State.

OUR WASHINGTON DESPATCHES.

WASHINGTON, April 14, 1861.

The answer of the President to the Virginia Commissioners indicates the course of the Lincoln government. There is no longer any doubt that the most active war measures will at once be taken to repossess all the government property at the South. Congress will be at once convened, men and supplies asked for, and the whole power of the government will be exerted to its utmost capacity to maintain its nationality and integrity. No means will be left untried to inaugurate a war policy of the most gigantic proportions.

In spite of the Sabbath, thick crowds gathered to-day at the street corners, and in front of the several hotels, and kept up a continued and excited discussion of the events in Charleston harbor.

About noon it became generally known that the President had a proclamation ready for promulgation, calling a special session of Congress, and making a requisition upon the several States for seventy-five thousand men. The feeling of oppressedness under which the Unionists labored ever since Friday disappeared at once. Faces lighted up, and loud expressions of gratification were heard in every direction.

The proclamation also convenes Congress on the Fourth of July.

The Attorney General has decided that the President has authority, under existing circumstances, to call upon the States for troops without the special authority of Congress. A special session of Congress may be called for other purposes nevertheless.

The announcement was received as an earnest of the intention of the administration to prosecute the war opened by the South Carolina secessionists with the utmost vigor, and never stop until the revolution was fairly crushed out, and greeted as such with the liveliest satisfaction by men of all parties. That the North will be as unit in the support of whatever measures the government will now take, for the re-establishment and maintenance of its authority in the seceded States, is plainly shown in the unanimity of sentiment prevailing on this question among the democratic, republican and American leaders now here.

A proclamation, declaring Washington under martial law, is expected to be issued to-morrow.

The requisitions upon the Governors of the several States will be issued and sent forward to-morrow.

The quota of troops asked for from Pennsylvania is about thirteen thousand, New York the same number, and Massachusetts about two thousand, Maryland three thousand, and the other States in proportion. The government will accept more than the number asked for from each State if offered. There is no doubt, from present indications, that most of the States will tender more troops than the government want.

The War Department has been busy to-day in the preparation of the details to be communicated to the State authorities.

Efforts are still making to concentrate a formidable military force in and around Washington, to be prepared for all emergencies.

An additional number of federal troops arrived to-day by special train.

The roads and avenues leading to Washington are closely watched. Arrangements have been made to promptly concentrate the military forces at any threatened point.

Ten thousand volunteers from Pennsylvania and New York will be concentrated here in the course of the present week.

Fifteen hundred men are now under arms, guarding the public buildings and every approach to the capital.

Governor Dennison, from Ohio, telegraphed last night, offering ten thousand men to the President for immediate service.

Senator Sherman, and a number of other prominent Northern men, returned home this afternoon, to assist in the organization of the militia in their several States.

Governor Curtin, of Pennsylvania, was engaged all day with Secretary Cameron, making arrangements for the immediate transfer of several Pennsylvania regiments to the capital.

Two officers of the New York city militia to-day announced to the President the readiness of their regiments to respond to his call.

Captain Newton, of Boston, acting commander of the second battalion Massachusetts Volunteer Militia, a very efficient corps, tendered his services and his battalion to the President yesterday.

General Lane, the newly elected Kansas Senator, speaks of resigning and returning to Kansas to raise a regiment.

The President had repeated and protracted consultations with the members of the Cabinet to-day. He is calm and composed, but determined to put down Southern revolution at any cost.

The military guard at the general public departments was largely increased last night.

The war feeling is up among the Union men of the country now here, and the city is full of Northern, Western and Middle States people.

A large number of military men have left for different parts of the North, for the purpose of raising regiments. Col. Ellsworth goes immediately to Illinois for that purpose.

Arrangements will be immediately made for the] construction of the seven steam sloops-of-war provided for at the last session of Congress.

The government is active in every department in preparing for the most vigorous execution of the laws.

Three cavalry companies from Texas, and Sherman's light battery of artillery, are expected here to-morrow.

Additional volunteer companies will be mustered in to-morrow.

Five officers of the navy yesterday tendered to the Navy Department their resignations, which were refused. Their names will probably be stricken from the list as dismissed, as in the recent cases of several officers of the army under similar circumstances.

The National Volunteers last night passed a resolution severely denouncing the military operations of the government, and expressing sympathy with the secessionists. It is said these volunteers are several hundred strong.

WASHINGTON, April 14, 1861.

The news from Charleston to-day is quite encouraging to the friends of the administration. If the despatches can be believed, it appears that Major Anderson did not surrender the fort last night and proceed under escort to Morris Island. On the contrary, a flag of truce from the fleet lying outside the bar was sent to Morris Island, inquiring if the revolutionists would consent to allow Major Anderson to evacuate in a vessel of the fleet. They agreed to cease hostilities until nine o'clock to-day, to consider the proposition, and by despatches from Charleston to-day noon, General Beauregard notified the Commodore of the fleet that they would not object to the evacuation of Sumter by Major Anderson in the manner indicated by the commander of the United States forces.

Accordingly it is asserted that Major Anderson will embark in the steamer Isabel for New York this afternoon.

The government is at a loss to understand the failure of the relief fleet to make a demonstration. Official advices are anxiously looked for, as alone apt to solve the mystery.

The failure of the expeditions despatched to Charleston has convinced the administration that the views expressed by General Scott, in regard to the number of soldiers required to reinforce Fort Sumter, were correct. They will, in all probability, hereafter follow his advice, instead of that of inexperienced men.

It is denied, positively and emphatically, that any overture was ever made to the South Carolina authorities to evacuate Fort Sumter and leave a corporal's guard and flag. No such proposition was ever made. If made it would have been accepted. On the contrary, they assert that, while the administration were daily assuring the world of their intention to abandon it, orders were sent to Major Anderson to strengthen the defences and maintain it until the expedition for succor arrived. Personal pledges, it is said, are in writing, that Fort Sumter was to be abandoned, while the writers were preparing an armament to hold it. It was the bad faith of the administration and the utter recklessness of truth, they assert, that stimulated the government at Montgomery to order its reduction before the arrival of the succoring squadron and the landing of troops. The administration emphatically deny that such is the fact. Mr. Lincoln asserts that neither himself nor any of his administration gave them any such assurance. The administration held that it was dealing with traitors, and did not propose to disclose its policy.

Official advices from Montgomery, received to-day, indicate a most vigorous policy on the part of the Confederate government. They are greatly elated at their triumphant success at Fort Sumter, and vast preparations have been made, and are making, for defensive and offensive hostilities. A high functionary of that government, in a despatch to a friend in this city, says the Confederate Congress will declare war so soon as it assembles, but in act will discriminate between alien friends and alien enemies. In the former class are included the border slave States, and all at the North who oppose the policy of the Lincoln government. These, they assert, will be exempt from all the penalties of war. Over twenty thousand volunteers, he says, are enrolled at Montgomery from the border States, ready to march at a minute's notice. This number will be multiplied almost indefinitely if required. Five Irish regiments from the North, they state, have tendered their services, and will be accepted.

There is the greatest anxiety everywhere to hear further news from the South. Groups discuss the war news and its future effects on the country.

Mrs. Doubleday, the spirited wife of Captain Doubleday, is here.

WASHINGTON, April 14, 1861.

Information continues to be received from private sources of secret plots in various localities in Maryland and Virginia, having in view the seizure of the public property and even persons, the highest officers of the government. Though these accounts are not generally credited, they are believed in official quarters, and hence the precautionary movements. At all events, they are considered necessary, no one knowing what turn events may take during the prevalent excitement.

Information from what are deemed reliable sources was received last night, to the effect that the secessionists of Delaware, whose headquarters are reported to be in Virginia, were about to make a sudden attack upon Fort Delaware, opposite Delaware City, for which they were preparing last month. Immediate steps were taken by the Secretary of War to prevent the consummation of the plot.

The Virginia Commissioners returned to Richmond to-day. They were cautious in expressing their opinions relative to the President's reply.

Senator Douglas called on the President to-night. He had an interesting conversation on the present condition of the country. The substance of it was, on the part of Mr. Douglas, that while he was unalterably opposed to the administration on all its political issues, he was prepared to sustain the President in the exercise of all his constitutional functions to preserve the Union, maintain the government, and defend the federal capital. A firm policy, and prompt action were necessary. The capital of our country was in danger, and must be protected at all hazards, at any expense of men and money. He spoke of the present and future without reference to the past.

The interview of Judge Douglas with the President was not only exceedingly gratifying to both, but is the subject of much rejoicing by the friends of Mr. Douglas here.

Colonel Ellsworth intends to raise a regiment of picked men in Illinois, who will be armed with an improved rifle and sabre, and uniformed and equipped for the Zouave drill. Every company will have one or more commissioned and non-commissioned officers thoroughly competent to teach the Zouave drill, and the regiment will be hurried through with all possible despatch. Colonel E has special instructions from the government with regard to the matter.

THE SURRENDER OF SUMTER.

Interesting Additional Details of the Bombardment at Charleston—Arrangements for the Departure of Major Anderson and his Troops.

CHARLESTON, April 13—Evening.

Major Anderson has surrendered, after hard fighting, commencing at half-past four o'clock yesterday morning, and continuing until five minutes to one to-day.

The American flag has given place to the palmetto of South Carolina.

You have received my previous despatches concerning the fire and the shooting away of the flagstaff. The latter event is due to Fort Moultrie, as well as the burning of the fort, which resulted from one of the hot shots fired in the morning.

During the conflagration General Beauregard sent a boat to Major Anderson, with offers of assistance, the bearers being Colonels W. P. Miles and Roger Pryor, of Virginia, and Lee. But before it reached him a flag of truce had been raised. Another boat then put off, containing ex-Governor Manning, Major D. R. Jones and Colonel Charles Allston, to arrange the terms of surrender, which were the same as those offered on the 11th inst. These were official. They stated that all proper facilities would be afforded for the removal of Major Anderson and his command, together with the company arms and property, and all private property, to any post in the United States he might elect. The terms were not, therefore, unconditional.

Major Anderson stated that he surrendered his sword to General Beauregard as the representative of the Confederate government. General Beauregard said he would not receive it from so brave a man. He says Major Anderson made a staunch fight, and elevated himself in the estimation of every true Carolinian.

During the fire, when Major Anderson's flagstaff was shot away, a boat put off from Morris Island, carrying another American flag for him to fight under—a noteworthy instance of the honor and chivalry of the South Carolina seceders, and their admiration for a brave man.

The scene in the city after the raising of the flag of truce and the surrender is indescribable; the people were perfectly wild. Men on horseback rode through the streets proclaiming the news, amid the greatest enthusiasm.

On the arrival of the officers from the fort they were marched through the streets, followed by an immense crowd, hurrahing, shouting and yelling with excitement.

Several fire companies were immediately sent down to Fort Sumter to put out the fire, and any amount of assistance was offered.

A regiment of eight hundred men has just arrived from the interior, and has been ordered to Morris Island, in view of an attack from the fleet, which may be attempted to-night.

Six vessels are reported off the bar, but the utmost indignation is expressed against them for not coming to the assistance of Major Anderson when he made signals of distress.

The soldiers on Morris Island jumped on the guns every shot they received from Fort Sumter, while thus disabled, and gave three cheers for Major Anderson and groans for the fleet.

Colonel Lucas, of the Governor's staff, has just returned from Fort Sumter, and says Major Anderson told him he had pleasanter recollections of Fort Moultrie than Fort Sumter. Only five men were wounded, one seriously.

The flames have destroyed everything. Both officers and soldiers were obliged to lay on their faces in the casemates to prevent suffocation.

The explosions heard in the city were from small piles of shell, which ignited from the heat.

The effect of the shot upon the fort was tremendous. The walls were battered in hundreds of places, but no breach was made.

Major Anderson expresses himself much pleased that no lives had been sacrificed, and says that to Providence alone is to be attributed the bloodless victory. He compliments the firing of the Carolinians, and the large number of exploded shells lying around attest their effectiveness.

The number of soldiers in the fort was about seventy, besides twenty-five workmen, who assisted at the guns. His stock of provisions was almost exhausted, however. He would have been starved out in two more days.

The entrance to the fort is mined, and the officers were told to be careful, even after the surrender, on account of the heat, lest it should explode.

A boat from the squadron, with a flag of truce, has arrived at Morris Island, bearing a request to be allowed to come and take Major Anderson and his forces. An answer will be given to-morrow at nine o'clock.

The public feeling against the fleet is very strong, it being regarded as cowardly to make not even an attempt to aid a fellow officer.

Had the surrender not taken place, Fort Sumter would have been stormed to-night. The men are crazy for a fight.

The bells have been chiming all day, guns firing, ladies waving handkerchiefs, people cheering, and citizens making themselves generally demonstrative. It is regarded as the greatest day in the history of South Carolina.

CHARLESTON, April 14, 1861.

The last act in the drama of Fort Sumter has been concluded. Major Anderson has evacuated, and, with his command, departed by the steamer Isabel from the harbor. He saluted his flag, and the company, then forming on the parade ground, marched out upon the wharf, with drum and fife playing "Yankee Doodle."

During the salute a pile of cartridges burst in one of the casemates, killing two men and wounding four others. One was buried in the fort with military honors. The other will be buried by the soldiers of South Carolina.

The wounded men were brought to the city, where they are receiving the best surgical attention. The others went in the steamer.

It is not definitely known whether Major Anderson will go to New York in the Isabel, or in a man-of-war; but it is supposed the former, as he is said to be highly incensed against the United States officers for not coming to his assistance during the fire, in response to frequent signals of distress.

The Isabel was furnished him at his own request.

The people are equally indignant here, and say it is the most cowardly act ever perpetrated. They might have even made the attempt to aid him.

In contrast with this, an old slave passed through the hottest fire, with a sloop load of wood, on Friday evening, and came safely to the city. Somebody told him he would be killed in the attempt. "Cant help dat," said he; "must go to de town to-night. If anybody hurt dis chile or dis boat, massa see him about it, shuah." His sloop received four shots.

It is reported here that Major Anderson sent in his resignation, to take effect on the inauguration of the Lincoln government, but no notice was taken of it.

The news received from Washington to-night, states that Major Anderson strongly expected treachery. The idea is preposterous.

The fort is burned into a mere shell; not a particle of woodwork can be found. The guns on one side of the parapet are entirely dismounted, others split, while the gun carriages are knocked into splinters.

Major Anderson says the accuracy of the firing surprised him, and that if he had had two hundred more men, one half would have been killed for want of suitable protection.

When Colonel Chesnut, aid of General Beauregard, went to offer assistance, after the fire, he says the fort was was like an oven, and he could hardly breathe. It was so hot that Major Anderson received him in one of the casemates. Inquiry being made how many were killed, he said, "None." "How many on your side?" "None," was the response. "Thank God," replied Major Anderson, "there has been a higher Power over us."

Major Anderson says it is preposterous to fight such a people. One of the officers in the fort remarked that they had endeavored not to fire on exposed individuals. "Yes," said Major Anderson, "I gave orders not to sight men, but to silence batteries."

Both men and officers were begrimmed with smoke and powder.

The batteries which have done the most mischief are the Dahlgren battery, Stevens battery, and the rifle cannon.

The fort was set on fire three times with hot shot on Friday, but was extinguished. On Saturday it was again in flames, and then beyond control. After the fire ceased, the Surgeon General of the State troops went down and offered his personal services to aid the wounded.

As regards harbor defence, the fort is just as good as ever. The casemates are perfect, the guns there in prime condition, and bear on both sides.

Major Anderson was obliged to throw overboard a large quantity of powder to prevent explosion, and it was floating around the fort to-day.

One of the aids carried brandy to Major Anderson in a boat, after the fire, and the latter said it was very acceptable, as the men were completely exhausted by their labors. I mention this to show the kind and chivalrous relations between the officers.

Before going into action Major Anderson sent word by an aid of General Beauregard to the Governor, thanking him for kind attentions during the past two months, and very solemnly said, "Farewell, gentlemen. If we do not meet again here, I hope we shall meet in a better world."

Just before the demand for the evacuation he received a letter from his wife, informing him of the HERALD reports that the demand would be made. He was much surprised; but more so when the fact was verified three minutes afterwards.

The fort has been garrisoned by the Palmetto Guards, and put under command of Lieut. Colonel Ripley, who commanded Fort Moultrie after the departure of Major Anderson.

The Major's feelings were spared in every respect, and no person, except authorized aids, allowed inside. The harbor is full of boats sailing around the fort. But no parties without business are permitted to land.

Special despatches to-night state that Mr. Lincoln has called for seventy-five thousand volunteers. The people think there is a great deal of bluff about it.

The city is resuming its usual quiet. Everybody is exchanging congratulations over the successful termination of the fight; but the soldiers are itching for a hand to hand brush.

The Confederate flag and the Palmetto flag were hoisted on separate spars simultaneously.

It is believed that a blockade has been finally established.

LATER.

The fire has broken out afresh in the ruins of the fort. Two engines have gone down to operate, and if necessary flood the magazine.

ANOTHER ACCOUNT.

CHARLESTON, April 13—P. M.

Hostilities have for the present ceased, and the victory belongs to South Carolina. With the display of the flag of truce on the ramparts of Sumter at half-past one o'clock the firing ceased, and an unconditional surrender was made.

The Carolinians had no idea that the fight was at an end so soon.

After the flagstaff of Anderson was shot away, Col. Wigfall, aid to General Beauregard, at his commander's request, went to Sumter with a white flag to offer assistance in extinguishing the flames. He approached the burning fortress from Morris Island, and while the firing was raging on all sides, effected a landing at Sumter. He approached a porthole and was met by Major Anderson.

The commandant of Fort Sumter said he had just displayed a white flag, but the firing from the Carolina batteries was kept up nevertheless.

Colonel Wigfall replied that Major Anderson must haul down the American flag; that no parley would be granted. Surrender or fight was the word.

Major Anderson then hauled down his flag and displayed only that of truce.

All firing instantly ceased, and two other of General Beauregard's staff—ex-Senator Chesnut and ex-Governor Manning—came over in a boat and stipulated with the Major that his surrender should be unconditional for the present, subject to the terms of General Beauregard.

Major Anderson was allowed to remain with his men

HARRISON'S PATENT EUROPEAN RANGE.
New Jersey State Lunatic Asylum, Trenton, April 8, 1861.
Messrs. BRAMHALL, DEANE & CO.—
I am pleased to be able to inform you that both the large four Oven Hotel and the smaller Family Ranges are working to our entire satisfaction.
They are made substantially and well, do their work in the best manner, and consume but a moderate amount of coal; the former only one third, and the latter one-half the quantity used by the fixtures that preceded them.
The large range is eminently fitted for use in hotels or large institutions of all kinds, while the small one is equally well adapted for family use.
I trust the public will soon become acquainted with the superior merits of these valuable fixtures.
Respectfully, yours,

MAILS FOR EUROPE.

The New York Herald—Edition for Europe.

The Cunard mail steamship America, Capt. McAulay, will leave Boston on Wednesday for Liverpool.

The mails for Europe will close in this city to-morrow afternoon, at a quarter-past one and at half-past five o'clock, to go by railroad.

THE EUROPEAN EDITION OF THE HERALD will be published at eleven o'clock in the morning. Single copies, in wrappers, six cents.

The contents of the EUROPEAN EDITION OF THE HERALD will combine the news received by mail and telegraph at the office during the previous week and up to the hour of publication.

The News.

The news from Washington this morning is highly important. The President, and the Commissioners appointed by the Virginia State Convention to ascertain from Mr. Lincoln personally his policy in regard to the seceded States, had a formal interview on Saturday at the White House. The President referred the Commissioners to his inaugural address for an exposition of his policy, and stated that he did not intend to invade any State or community, but at the same time assured the Commissioners that if the secessionists had made war for the purpose of driving the government from the possession of its property, he should not only do his utmost to hold all the forts now in possession of the government, but would speedily proceed to retake those already seized, and, in any event, to the best of his ability, repel force by force.

In accordance with these views, the President will to-day issue his proclamation, calling for seventy-five thousand men to take the field forthwith. The document is printed in our columns this morning. The quota of troops required from the State of New York is thirteen thousand. The President announces that the first duty of the troops will be to retake the forts and repossess the public property seized by the secessionists.

The proclamation also convenes Congress in extraordinary session, to meet on the Fourth of July next.

The administration are making active preparations for the defence of the federal capital.

The six steam sloops of war authorized by the last Congress will be put under contract without delay.

As announced in yesterday's HERALD, Fort Sumter was on Saturday surrendered to the revolutionists. Major Anderson and his comrades, after a gallant struggle of some thirty hours' duration, in which he sustained a heavy and continuous fire from the batteries of the secessionists, that not only greatly damaged the fort, but also set on fire the wooden structures, struck his flag.

A pile of cartridges exploded in the fort yesterday, killing two men and wounding four others.

Major Anderson and his command were to sail from Charleston at eleven o'clock last evening, on board the steamer Isabel, for New York. The gallant Major will no doubt receive a magnificent reception on his arrival in this city.

Advices from Albany state that Governor Morgan will to-morrow issue a call for twenty-five thousand men for the assistance of the federal government.

A private letter from Governor Curtin, of Pennsylvania, to a prominent citizen of New York, states that he can have one hundred thousand Pennsylvanians in Washington within forty-eight hours if required.

Nothing new in a military point of view has transpired, our military men accepting yesterday as a day of rest. The offices were all closed, and Governor's Island was in a perfect state of tranquillity, looking green and fresh in its spring dress. The soldiers were sauntering about, amusing themselves in various ways, or else standing in groups, speaking of the future, and of what fortune, good or bad, it might bring them. The force is being greatly increased by the reception of recruits, and will soon be able to furnish a fresh supply of men in case of necessity. The commanding officer had received no orders as to the disposition of the soldiers. Some order may come soon, however, if the rumor proves true that the steamers Vanderbilt and Philadelphia have been chartered by the government.

The steamship De Soto, Captain Johnson, from New Orleans and Havana, arrived at this port at an early hour yesterday morning. Havana dates are to the 9th. There is no news.

General Cushman, United States Minister to the Argentine Confederation, is about to return home.

The bark Zingaretta arrived at this port yesterday with Rio Janeiro advices to February 24. The sales of coffee since the departure of the last steamer, were about 112,000 bags. The quotations were for washed, 6$500 a 7$500; superior, 6$300 a 6$400; first good, 6$000 a 6$100; first ordinary, 4$700 a 5$800; second do. 4$700 a 5$600. Exchange on London 26d. Freights to the United States nominal; to London and Liverpool 41s. a 55s.; to the channel, &c., 60s. a 65s.

The Havana papers give the following items of Mexican news, taken from El Heraldo, of the capital:—General Ortega and Senor Prieto had resigned their posts, and the former was to be replaced by General Uraga. The election of Juarez to the Presidency is not definitely known. Ortega follows him closely. Don Angel Iturbide (a memorable name) goes to Berlin as Secretary of Legation. The forces of Lozada and Mejia, in the Sierra, have been completely destroyed, the former at Alica on the 13th ult., and the latter at Guayabitas on the 2d ult., by General Doblado. The action at Alica was extremely desperate and bloody. A correspondent of the Estafette, writing from Tepic, in the State of Xalisco, says a body of a hundred and fifty fillibusters landed at Cape San Lucas on February 2, since which time they have been joined by many more, swelling their numbers to about four hundred. On the 15th of the same month a Mexican vessel left Mazatlan, with three hundred men and three small pieces of artillery, under Colonel Cota, with the intention of operating against them. The expected difficulty with Spain is in a fair way of being amicably adjusted.

The sales of cotton on Saturday were confined to some 500 a 600 bales, in lots, closing tamely at 12½c. for middling uplands. The market for breadstuffs was less active, while prices were without change of importance. Pork was quiet and prices unchanged. There was very little doing in sugar, coffee or freights.

The Appeal to Arms—President Lincoln's War Manifesto.

The most important and momentous manifesto that has ever emanated from our federal executive government is the reply of President Lincoln to the Virginia Commissioners touching the policy he "intends to pursue in regard to the Confederate States." The policy thus disclosed comprehends the submission or subjugation to the government at Washington of "all the States which claim to have seceded," although Mr. Lincoln qualifies it to a merely defensive and limited system of operations.

He will use the power confided in him "to hold, occupy and possess property and places belonging to the government, and to collect the duties on imports," in the seceded as in the States still attached to our Union. In his inaugural this declaration was intended to apply to the military posts and property which were in the possession of the government when it came into his hands; but he emphatically declares that, "If, as now appears to be true, in pursuit of a purpose to drive the United States authority from these places, an unprovoked assault has been made upon Fort Sumter, I shall hold myself at liberty to repossess it, if I can, like places which had been seized before the government was devolved upon me; and, in any event, I shall, to the best of my ability, repel force by force." Next, in consequence of the assault upon Fort Sumter, the suspension of the United States mail service in the seceded States is threatened, as justified, and possibly demanded, by the actual commencement of war against the government.

Such is the ultimatum of our federal administration to the special commission of inquiry from the Virginia State Convention. Accordingly, not only the recapture of Fort Sumter, but of the surrounding forts, becomes now the declared purpose of Mr. Lincoln, and, in the face of this declaration, his promise that he "will not attempt to collect the duties on imports by any armed invasion of any part of the country," except the landing of "a force deemed necessary to relieve some fort upon the border," practically, as a peace reservation, amounts to nothing. In their late war against Russia the hostile operations of England and France were limited to the waters and shores of the Black and Baltic seas; but it was as much a war for the reduction of the Czar to their terms as if the Allies had penetrated his territories to Moscow. So, now, the coast line military policy of Mr. Lincoln against "the States which claim to have seceded," means war, and, if followed up, is just as sure to involve the two sections in a general war as if he had declared his purpose to be the suppression of the Montgomery government by a hostile march upon that city.

On the other side, it is very evident that it is not the purpose of the seceded States to pause with the capture of Fort Sumter. They have a formidable besieging army mustered and impatient of restraint in front of Fort Pickens. They have resolved upon its possession. Its occupation, on their part, is considered necessary to ever a plausible appearance before the world of their liberation from the government at Washington. The attempt, therefore, will be made to reduce Fort Pickens as Sumter has been reduced, and thus between these two fortresses there may be scope and verge enough for all the naval forces of the United States and all the land forces of the Confederate States, for many months to come.

But has Mr. Lincoln the power to limit the points of this civil war which is upon us? Can a fire in a combustible city be limited to a few houses which it may be deemed necessary to burn down? We apprehend that our President's ultimatum to Virginia will speedily be followed by an ordinance of secession on the part of her State Convention, which, since the 20th of February, has been laboring to resist the disunion pressure upon it. We fear that the secession of Virginia will soon be followed by a similar movement on the part of North Carolina, Tennessee, Arkansas and Kentucky, and we do not feel perfectly assured of the continued adhesion of Maryland to the United States. We fear that there is something more than empty bravado in the late speech of the Southern Secretary of War at Montgomery, promising the occupation of the city of Washington by the Confederate States authorities very early in May.

At all events, the reduction of Fort Sumter and this manifesto of President Lincoln are equivalent to a declaration of war on both sides between the Confederate and the United States. In a conflict of this sort there can be but two parties—a Northern and a Southern party—for all other parties will cease to exist. The political principles, organizations and issues which have divided our country and our people, in various shapes and forms, since the treaty of our independence with England, will all be very soon overwhelmed in the sweeping changes of a civil war. It would be folly now to argue what might, could, would or should have been done by Southern fire-eaters and Northern disorganizers in 1854, 1860, or by Mr. Buchanan, or by Mr. Lincoln, or by the late session of Congress. Civil war is upon us, and the questions which now supersede all others are, What are the consequences now before us? where is this war to end? and how and when? what is our duty under this warlike condition of things? and what are the movements and the conditions necessary to change this state of war to a state of peace?

These questions will irresistibly impress themselves upon the mind of every thinking man, North and South. Earnestly laboring in behalf of peace, from the beginning of these sectional troubles down to this day, and for the maintenance of the Union through mutual concessions, we do not even yet utterly despair of arresting this civil war before it shall have passed beyond the reach of reason. In any event, the people of this metropolis owe it to themselves, to their material and political interests, to their social security and to the country at large, to make a solemn and imposing effort in behalf of peace. To this end we again call upon our fellow citizens of this island, irrespective of creed or party, to meet together in an earnest consultation upon the ways and means of peace. The government at Washington and that at Montgomery, confronted with the horrors of civil war, may yet recoil from them.

The conservative city of New York, guiltless of any agency in precipitating upon the two sections of this great country this causeless and senseless appeal to arms, has the right, and has some power to speak to the North and the South in behalf of peace.

WHAT WAS THE FLEET DOING OFF FORT SUMTER?—A good many people are speculating upon the question why the fleet lying off Charleston did not assist Major Anderson during the fight on Friday and Saturday. We presume there must have been some potent reason for the non-interference of the naval force which is still undivulged. That aid from the ships was desperately needed by the gallant defender of Fort Sumter is certain; for at about ten o'clock on Saturday morning his position was most precarious: all the combustible portions of the fort were on fire, the red hot shot from Fort Moultrie having set the barracks in a blaze; the piles of loaded shell which he had prepared for use were exploding rapidly from the intense heat, and they could not be removed quick enough to prevent the disaster; five men out of his small force were wounded, and the remainder of his command were exhausted from their work at the guns, or were half suffocated from the smoke of the burning buildings. In this emergency Anderson displayed his flag at half mast—a signal of distress, and a call for aid from the fleet; but he was neither reinforced from that quarter, nor was a shot fired from the ships at the assailing batteries, and at one o'clock, having no longer the means of resistance, he was compelled to surrender. Of course the reason for this conduct on the part of the war vessels remains as yet unexplained; but it is probable that the tugboats, which accompanied them for the purpose of conveying supplies to Fort Sumter, were scattered by the gale which prevailed, and had not then reached the port of Charleston. An attempt to reinforce the fort by small boats would have been madness under the circumstances, and thus we may arrive at some conclusion regarding the non-interference of the ships.

THE LEGISLATURE AND THE INTERESTS OF THE CITY.—The Albany Legislature, after a long career of damaging assaults upon this unfortunate metropolis, have at last done something of an ameliorative character for New York. We allude to the recent passage of the Contract bill, which deprives the Common Council of the authority to confirm or reject contracts, and thus cuts off the richest resources of corruption from that body. It is unnecessary just now to recapitulate all the rascality which the possession of this privilege gave rise to in the Corporation. The taxpayers have good reason to rejoice that it is abolished. The revision of the assessments by the Comptroller, Corporation Counsel and Recorder is another wholesome feature in this bill.

In its last hours the Legislature has also passed, and the Governor has signed, the bill appointing a commission of citizens to amend the charter, with an additional clause providing that the present heads of departments shall not be removed until after the adjournment of the next Legislature, except upon charges of malfeasance preferred against them. This bill secures the city the services of at least one upright and efficient officer—Street Commissioner Smith—whose management of his department has been worthy of all praise, and entitles him to the gratitude of the whole community. The duty devolving upon the gentlemen appointed to the Charter Commission is a very grave and important one, and we hope that they will prove equal to the task, and give us such a charter as will guarantee the metropolis in the enjoyment of all the rights and privileges which have been so long denied to it.

NOBODY KILLED AT CHARLESTON.—A great deal of surprise is manifested in all quarters at the fact that no one was killed on either side during thirty hours' bombardment of Fort Sumter, and the surprise is all the greater because it is alleged that the firing from all the batteries was excellent from the beginning to the end of the conflict. The guns on Fort Sumter were splendidly fought by Anderson's men, and yet it does not appear that any of the Confederate troops were killed, and only a few were wounded. But this can only be accounted for by the superior skill and science with which the batteries were constructed by the accomplished officers of engineers who erected them. The defences at Fort Moultrie, Cummings Point, Morris Island, and the iron battery, were constructed with the intention that the artillerists should not be killed at their guns, and it appears that they accomplished this purpose. The experience acquired in modern warfare, especially in the Crimea, has rendered the effective working of batteries comparatively safe, by the substitution of earthworks, sand bags and iron for the stone stockade and other defences formerly adopted. It is therefore to science that we must attribute the bloodless character of this terrific bombardment, and not to want of skill in the use of the guns. The impregnability of the defences round Charleston harbor only shows what protection such class of batteries could afford in case of an invasion by a foreign Power, so that, if no other good has come of the assault on Fort Sumter, it has at least given us a practical lesson in the efficiency of coast defences.

The fact that no life was lost in the thirty hours' heavy firing at Charleston, however, need hardly excite much astonishment when we remember the results of the battle of New Orleans, when, notwithstanding the terrible slaughter of the British troops, who were exposed to the fire of Jackson's men, ensconced behind their cotton bale defences—a slaughter in which the English General Pakenham was included—only seven men were killed on the American side, although they were opposed by skilled troops who had learned experience in the wars against Napoleon.

THE WAR EXCITEMENT.—There can be no better evidence of the extent to which the public mind is fevered by the events now transpiring at Charleston, than the effect which they have had upon the circulation of the newspapers in this city. That of the HERALD for the last three days shows how faithful an index it is of the public pulse:—

Friday, April 12	94,000
Saturday, April 13	107,520
Sunday, April 14	135,600

This is the largest issue of any daily newspaper that has ever been printed, and it marks the intenseness of the anxiety which pervades all classes of the community. It also evinces an intelligent appreciation of the misfortunes that are impending over us. The history of the world does not record any event so pregnant with calamity to the whole human race as the inauguration of civil war in this once happy and prosperous country.

MAILS TO THE SOUTH TO BE CUT OFF.—It appears, from the speech of Mr. Lincoln to the Virginia Commissioners on Saturday, that, in addition to whatever military or naval arrangements the President may make under present circumstances, he is determined to stop the mail service to the seceded States. This measure will undoubtedly do serious damage to the South, and to the North also. It will cut off all commercial and social connections between the two divisions of the country; it will be a second step towards establishing a condition of civil war, and will widen the breach between the North and the South.

EFFECT OF THE WAR NEWS FROM THIS SIDE IN EUROPE.—In eleven or twelve days, at farthest, the news of the commencement of civil war in this country will have reached Europe. Three steamers—the Kangaroo, the New York and the John Bell—left our port yesterday morning, having been detained over from the previous day for the purpose of taking out some definite intelligence in regard to the operations in Charleston harbor. We need not say that the effect of this news on Great Britain and on the Continent of Europe will be most disastrous. Although in a measure prepared for it, its results will affect their populations to an extent on which they have not calculated.

Operatic and Dramatic Matters.

The short Opera season was brought to a close on Saturday night by the performance at the Academy of Music of "Moses in Egypt," as an oratorio. During the latter part of the week the Opera as well as the theatres suffered materially from the war excitement, and the performances in Brooklyn failed to remunerate the artists. Our friends across the water have evidently recovered from their severe attack of musical enthusiasm. At the New York Academy the "Ballo in Maschera," "La Juive," and "Linda di Chamounix" and "Moses in Egypt" have been given. At Brooklyn, "La Juive," "Linda" and "Moses." The noticeable event of the week was the great success which Madame Colson achieved in the "Jewess." The performance of Rachel was worthy of a first class lyric tragedienne, and it is the more remarkable from the fact that Madame Colson's triumphs have been gained heretofore in the domain of Thalia rather than that of Melpomene.

The Associated Artists open their Philadelphia campaign this evening. Thence they go to Cincinnati, Chicago and St. Louis. The combination includes now Madame Colson, Brignoli, Susini and Muzio. Signor Ferri seceded at Boston; and, singularly enough, has been very ill ever since.

The artists have a full repertoire, a good company, with costumes, music, &c., complete. Our readers in the provinces will find that this is really a first class opera troupe, such a one as they may not hear again in many years.

Now that the Opera has dissolved, the musical public looks with more attention at the concert programmes. The soiree musicale of Mme. Speranza has been postponed for the present. The Philharmonic Society's last concert for the season takes place at the Academy next Saturday evening. The Gottschalk concerts will probably be commenced next week. Mrs. C. S. Worrall announces a musical and literary soiree at Clinton Hall on Thursday. The Bryant Minstrels commence a new series of their very popular entertainments at Mechanics' Hall this evening. Lloyd's Minstrels have drawn large audiences to Niblo's Saloon, and will continue their concerts during the week.

The theatres, as well as the Opera, suffered from the war excitement. On Saturday the audiences were limited, and but little attention was given to the performance. The prospects for this week are better. Mr. Edwin Booth commences an engagement at the Winter Garden to-night, playing Shylock. During the week Mr Booth will play Othello and Hamlet. Mr. Forrest has recovered his health, and will appear at Niblo's Garden this evening as Virginius.

At Wallack's theatre "Henriette" and "A Regular Fix" will be given to-night and every night this week. The last named play is the freshest London farce, and is exceedingly entertaining. Mr. Walcot plays the principal character capitally. At Laura Keene's theatre "The Seven Sisters" is announced for the 142d night, an unprecedented run.

At the New Bowery theatre the patriotic drama, "The Liberty Boys of '76," will be given this evening, together with "The Red Gnome and White Warrior" (pantomime), and "The Lucky Horseshoe" (melodrama).

At Barnum's to-day the dramatic attraction is "The Flying Dutchman." In the evening, "Ruth Oakley."

The French theatre is closed for the present. At the German Stadt theatre "Catherine Parr"—a historical drama by Madame Spengler—has been produced with success, and will be repeated to-night—principal characters by Madame Hoym, Madame Graha, Miss Scheller, Messrs. Hoym and Knorr.

Mrs. John Wood and Mr. Jefferson will make their rentree at the Winter Garden on Monday night week.

Miss Maria G. Walcot's translation of the "Testament de Cæsar Girodot" was produced at the Boston Museum last Monday night, with entire success.

NEWS FROM THE STATE CAPITAL.

Milk Freight—Quarantine—Legalizing the Acts of the Chamber of Commerce—Safe Keeping of Valuable Parcels—A Scene of Hilarity and Confusion in the Assembly—Filibustering in the Senate—Commotion Over the Charter Commission Amendments—Probable Adjournment—Tax Levy and Health Bill—Chamberlain and the Nautical School, &c., &c., &c.

ALBANY, April 14, 1861.

There was an interesting time on the bill to regulate the freight on milk on the Harlem Railroad in the Assembly last evening. Mr. Dutcher was the only person that spoke in favor of it. He went into statistics, showing that its rates were higher than other roads leading into any city but New York, and that it was at a much higher rate than any other class of freight on this road. He held that the farmers had a just right to complain, and that it was the duty of the Legislature to step in and protect the farmers who had appealed to them for relief. No bill before this body had been opposed so strenuously as this. They did not come to the Legislature asking their interference until after every effort and argument with the company was found unavailing, and the unalterable policy of the company intimated at different times. It has been expressly declared by the President of the company, and a confession of the doctrine provoked from him, that they were bound to charge all they could get out of the business.

Some waggish member during his speech sent to Congress Hall and obtained a glass of milk and set it on the desk in front of Mr. Dutcher, who, to the general amusement of the Assembly, tested its quality, and for the time being there was a general good time.

Mr. May opposed it with a short and pointed speech, declaring that the railroad committee, of which he was a member, had heard the argument pro and con upon it, and had given the parties more time to argue the measure than any other bill before them; they could find no merit in the bill, and had reported against it.

It was then ordered to a third reading, but that is about as far as it will get this session.

The Quarantine bill is the same as killed. The friends of each bill seem satisfied that it is a dead lock. If the Quarantine Commissioners' bill, which was substituted for the Senate bill, agreed upon by Mr. Ellingwood, the Staten Island representative, should happen to pass the Assembly, which is doubtful, that is the end of it. It will disappear between the two houses. The Senate will not endorse it; and thus matters will remain just as they are for another year, with a fair prospect of a repetition of the same contest hereafter. There is another contest in this matter—a trial of strength between the Governor and the Lieutenant Governor; the latter backs the Senate bill, and the former the Assembly substitute. The end of this controversy is a long way ahead, for until matters change here what the Senate adopt the House will repudiate, and vice versa.

Mr. Camp met with quite a triumph in obtaining the unanimous consent to get the bill relative to the Chamber of Commerce, and to legalize certain acts of that board, moved ahead and ordered to a third reading. The bill has already passed the Senate.

The bill relative to the keeping of valuable packages and parcels, which recently passed the Senate, and contemplates the formation of a company, with suitable safes, to take charge of the silver ware and other valuable articles of the fashionables whilst they are rusticating during the summer months at some watering place, passed the Assembly and has gone to the Governor for his signature.

The Assembly spent some two hours in a general scene of hilarity over all sorts of motions, several of them rising to a question of privilege, stating that they were being insulted by having placards pinned to their coats, such as "no smoking allowed here," or that some member was pulling their chairs out from under them, always ending by Mr. Arcularius, in his boisterous way, asking that the chairs and desks might be removed and the members be permitted to settle their troubles at once and on the spot, whilst the lobby were trying to settle the point whether certain members were tight or only had too much wine down. Then Mr. Chapman in his waggish way declared that a number of those present acted as though they had travelled up and down the stairs to the Senate chamber too often, and had emptied more bottles than it was necessary for the stomach's sake. A general state of excitement and confusion reigned in the House for a long time, a faction being determined to adjourn sine die, and another equally bent on remaining until Monday or Tuesday. It was for a long time a perfect bedlam of confusion.

The Senate commenced about nine o'clock to resolve itself into an executive session, the Governor having sent a communication to them which required action upon with closed doors. No sooner had the motion been made before Senators Hammond and Spinola commenced their filibustering; the former in particular, aided by those republican Senators who were opposed to the confirmation of Van Dyke, and they kept it up, first on one motion and then on another, so as to evade the fifteen minute rule, Hammond showing a wonderful power of talkative endurance, and holding out until eleven o'clock, the hour fixed upon for the adjournment for the evening, thus preventing an executive session. Here there is a direct snub at the Governor by his own party friends, who resort to all manner of device to prevent going into executive session when he asks them to. If this don't prove the existence of two parties in the republican ranks, then we don't know what does.

The passage of the Charter Commission bill, with the amendment in it providing that the heads or chiefs of the departments who are appointed shall not be removed without charges being preferred against them before the Recorder, until after the adjournment of the Legislature, has caused a wonderful fluttering in the third house, especially amongst the aldermanic representatives and a few republican politicians, who had entered into a combination to remove Street Commissioner Smith as soon as the Legislature adjourned, under the understanding that they should have a share of the patronage under the new regime. It has spoiled their plans, and comes down among them like a bomb shell.

It now looks as though the legislative curtain would be dropped some time on Monday, at a late hour in the evening. They may possibly keep it rolled up until Tuesday, but not longer, unless the squabbles in the Senate prevent the passage of the Tax Levy and one or two other important bills. There is no telling what will be done or what left undone in the general scramble that is now going on. Matters are decidedly mixed up, and a person will have to be in forty places at once to tell the combinations that are being made to get this or that bill through, each trying to steal the march upon some one else. Neither Fort Sumter nor the camps of the enemy exhibit any more commotion than is manifested here over the measures before them.

It was boldly asserted last night that the friends of the Health bill would not allow the city Tax Levy to pass without their bill was first put through. A combination of this kind may be made which will prevent the passage of the Tax Levy and leave many an anxious individual without any means to get his pay. This seems to be the last dodge to force the Health bill, with all its odious measures, upon the city of New York, and give to a new set of commissioners power never before granted to any officials. In reality a fair sample of monarchial power.

The City Chamberlain bill has been signed.

The news from Charleston has caused a profound sensation here, although but few can be found that will believe that it is correct.

Senator McLeod Murphy's Nautical School bill has passed both houses and is in the hands of the Governor.

NEW YORK STATE LEGISLATURE.

Senate.

ALBANY, April 13, 1861.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

The bill to establish a Nautical School in New York was received from the Assembly amended. The Senate concurred in the same.

The following bills were passed:—

Laying out the Public Park in the city of Brooklyn.

Exempting employees and telegraphic operators from serving as jurors.

Amending the act to widen Fourth avenue in Brooklyn.

Authorizing the Coney Island and Brooklyn Railroad Company to construct a road.

Amending the act relating to canal engineers.

Providing for amendments to the charter of the city of New York, and submitting the same to the people.

Amending the Brooklyn charter.

Mr. Robinson moved to lay the order of business on the table for the purpose of going into executive session. Lost.

The reception of the resolution renewing the declaration full and unreserved to support the President of the United States in every measure of war or peace, which shall maintain the honor of the country and assert the supremacy of the laws, was objected to. The Senate took a recess.

The Senate met at half past seven o'clock, and passed the following bills:—

Regulating the use of piers 32 and 33 East River, and the slips and bulk heads between said piers.

The Governor sent in a large package of bills for the consideration of the executive. Efforts were then made to go into executive session, which was fought off by Messrs. Spinola, Sessions, Latham and Hammond with success, and at eleven o'clock the Senate adjourned till Monday.

Assembly.

ALBANY, April 14, 1861.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

After a strong fight the substitute for the bill for the sale of the Quarantine, offered by Mr. Moore, was ordered to a third reading.

EVENING SESSION.

The bill to provide a charter for New York city came down from the Senate with an amendment keeping the office of all heads of departments, holding by appointment, until after the adjournment of the Legislature.

The House concurred in the amendment of the New York delegation, with only two or three exceptions voting against concurrence.

Mr. Young, under the Robinson resolution, moved forward the bill to amend the New York Unsafe Building act, and it was referred to a select committee to report complete.

The enacting clause was stricken out from the bill to limit the tenure of office in military.

The bill to regulate the milk freight on the Harlem Railroad, came up in the Committee of the Whole.

Mr. Dutcher spoke in favor of the bill, [illegible] it was ordered to a third reading.

On motion of Mr. Carr, by unanimous consent, the bill to legalize the acts of the Committee of Arbitration of the Chamber of Commerce, was ordered to a third reading.

The thanks of the Assembly were tendered to Speaker Littlejohn on motion of Mr. Kernan, who, with Messrs. Pierce and Benedict, made remarks complimentary to the Speaker.

The House then took up the resolutions with a view to the final adjournment, but could not get the resolutions before the House, the Speaker deciding that they must lie over one day.

After a scene of much confusion the House adjourned till half past nine o'clock on Monday.

THE WAR NEWS IN THE SOUTH

STRONG UNION DEMONSTRAIONS IN BALTIMORE.

BALTIMORE, April 14, 1861.

The Union feeling in this city has been unmistakably displayed in this city since Friday. Men with cockades and secession emblems have been chased by crowds, and protected by the police.

The bark Fanny Fernshaw hoisted the secession flag to-day, and a crowd compelled a boy on the vessel to take it down. The captain afterwards rehoisted it, and required a detachment of thirty police to protect it from the people. The indignation is intense. All the other vessels in port hoisted the American flag. The captain is a Union man, but hoisted the flag under instructions from the owners of the vessel, the Messrs. Curry, of Richmond, Va.

THE FEELING IN RICHMOND, VA.

RICHMOND, April 14, 1861.

The demonstration continued till midnight.

Illuminations, bonfires and fireworks were the order of the evening.

A party ascended the roof of the Capitol and hoisted the Southern flag on the flagstaff. It was subsequently removed by the guard.

THE FEELING IN ALEXANDRIA, VA.

ALEXANDRIA, VA., April 14, 1861.

A meeting was held here last night to form a home guard. Resolutions to resist Northern aggression were adopted, while several speakers advocated secession. Others argued in favor of a convention to unite the border States.

THE FEELING IN TENNESSEE.

NASHVILLE, April 13, 1861.

An enthusiastic public meeting was held here to-night. Resolutions were unanimously adopted condemning the administration for the present state of affairs, and sympathising with the South. The Hon. Mr. Zollicoffer and others spoke.

MEMPHIS, April 14, 1861.

Great excitement prevails in this city over the news from Charleston, and great crowds are in the streets. The event is being celebrated by cannon firing, rockets, bonfires, music and dancing.

THE SECESSION VOTE IN THE GEORGIA CONVENTION.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

GRIFFIN, GA., April 5, 1861.

In the HERALD of the 1st inst. you state that the vote in the Convention of Georgia on ratifying the constitution of the Confederate States was yeas ninety-six, nays five. This is an error. There were about 285 members present. They all voted for ratification; none against.

HENRY MOOR, Member of the Georgia Convention.

THREATENED REBELLION IN NORTH CAROLINA.

[From the Raleigh Standard of April 10.]

At a meeting of the disunionists of Cleveland county, held on the 30th March, to appoint delegates to Charlotte, Dr. Miller "advocated a large delegation to Charlotte of men who would go and act." A Mr. Durham said, "If North Carolina did not succeed in getting out of the old Union by constitutional means, he was then in favor of resorting to unconstitutional measures."

Great Western Railway Traffic.

HAMILTON, April 13, 1861.

The Great Western Railway traffic of the week ending yesterday amounts to $54,200, being an increase of $7,000 over the corresponding week in last year.

Coroners' Inquests.

INQUEST UPON THE BODY OF THOMAS EAGAN.—On Saturday afternoon Coroner Jackson held an inquest up on the body of Thomas Eagan, who was killed by being stabbed in the abdomen, at No. 31 Baxter street, about a week ago. The evidence given charges Antonio Morello, one of the proprietors of the saloon in whose place the difficulty occurred, with having inflicted the fatal wound. The following is the testimony, as sworn to before the Coroner:—

Thomas Tiernan, being duly sworn, says—I reside at No. 15 Baxter street; last Monday night, between eight and nine o'clock, I went into the saloon No. 31 Baxter street; I was playing a game of billiards with a young man when Dennis Shay came in; I think he was slightly under the influence of liquor; when our game was over Shay came up and took up the balls, Antonio Morello then came up to Shay and told him to put the balls down, Shay said he did not want to take the balls; Antonio told Shay three times to lay the balls down, after which he knocked them out of his hand; they then had some words together, when some of Shay's friends took him out of the house; almost immediately afterwards Shay came back again and had some words with Joralarmo Morello, and I believe Shay struck him, but I cannot say for certain; I then saw Joralarmo have a billiard ball in his hand and strike Shay on the head with it, deceased and Antonio were then striking each other with billiard cues; I saw a knife in the hands of Antonio; he seemed to put the knife to the stomach of the deceased and push it into him; Antonio and the deceased were on one side of the room, Joralarmo and Shay on the other side, at the time the stab was given.

Michael T. Sullivan, being duly sworn, says—I reside at No. 156 Leonard street; last Monday night, about eight o'clock, I was next door to No. 31 Baxter street, when I heard a noise and went into the saloon, where I saw three men beating the deceased with billiard cues; deceased was standing between the table and the wall; I saw the prisoners and some other person strike the deceased; I then went between them and shoved Joralarmo back; after this I went to get the other two men from him; I saw the prisoner, Antonio, flourish a knife and make one cut at deceased's head; he then made another thrust at him, and stabbed him in the abdomen; the prisoner made another attempt to stab deceased, when I took hold of his arm, and he dropped the knife; deceased then ran into the street and I followed him, and told him he was stabbed; he did not seem to know it, and I pulled up his shirt and showed him the wound; I then told some persons who were near by to take him to the hospital.

Dennis Murphy, being sworn, said—I reside at No. 54 Park street; on Monday night I was in Baxter street, at No. 33; a young man ran in there and told me there was a fight next door; I went into Morello's saloon and saw three men beating the deceased; I saw a knife in the hands of Antonio, and saw him stab the deceased in the abdomen; he made another attempt to stab him when the knife dropped from his hands; the knife shown me is the one the prisoner had in his hand; I picked it up from the floor and put it in my pocket; when the officers and Capt. Dowling came I gave the knife to the Captain; I saw no other person have a knife after the deceased was stabbed; the two prisoners continued to beat him with billiard cues out of the store, when deceased left the house I followed him and told him he was stabbed; I cannot tell how many persons were in the store at the time; I saw no person but the three mentioned strike the deceased.

One or two other witnesses, who were equally positive that Antonio Morello did the stabbing, were next sworn, after which the dying deposition of Eagan was read to the jury. He positively asserted that he was wounded by Joralarmo Morello, and on being confronted with the two prisoners, identified him as the one who had stabbed him. The case being given to the jury, they soon agreed to throw out the affidavit of the deceased and accept that of the living witnesses. They accordingly rendered the following verdict:—"That the deceased, Thomas Eagan, came to his death by a wound in the abdomen, and said wound was caused by a knife in the hands of Antonio Morello." Thereupon Antonio was committed to the Tombs by the Coroner for trial, while Joralarmo was suffered to go at large. The prisoner is a rough, brutal looking man, forty-four years of age and a native of Sardinia. In reply to the usual question, he said he was not guilty of the crime laid to his charge.

TIRED OF LIFE.—George Terenah, a young man twenty-seven years of age, a native of this city and formerly employed as a clerk in the store of Messrs. Bigelow & Hoagland, 44 Dey street, committed suicide on Saturday last by means of laudanum. Coroner Schirmer held an inquest in the case, when it appeared that the deceased had for some time past been suffering from sickness, and frequently stated he was tired of life. On Friday afternoon he went out and purchased some laudanum, and, when his wife returned home, she found him lying on the bed and the empty bottle beside him. He died during the night. A verdict of suicide, by means of laudanum, was rendered by the jury.

A KNOW NOTHING SECESSIONIST.—It is said that Honorable Kenneth Rayner, the great Know Nothing leader in North Carolina, is strongly in favor of secession.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL.

SUNDAY, April 14, 1861.

Civil war having at length broken out, the mercantile community have begun to examine its probable bearings on trade and the future of the country. On one point, so far as we have been able to ascertain, perfect unanimity exists among our moneyed men: the government must be sustained. Every one deplores the terrible calamity which has befallen the republic. But there is no desire among the merchants or capitalists of New York to shirk the issue, or to evade the responsibilities of the contest. Upon New York will devolve the chief burthen of providing ways and means for the war; our financial community accept the duty, and will perform it. This view we find to be universal among our moneyed men, including many whose sympathies have heretofore been with the South. If the government prove true to the country, it need not feel any uneasiness about money. In the opinion of our leading bankers, a hundred millions, over and above the receipts of the government from customs and land sales, if necessary to defray the expenses of the war for a year from this date, could be readily borrowed in Wall street, at a rate of interest certainly not exceeding that which France and England paid for the money they borrowed for the Russian war. If, for the purpose of bringing the war to an end, and settling this controversy of ours forever, a further sum be requisite, it will be forthcoming. Wall street, so far as we can judge, is ready to sustain the government heartily and liberally. An idea of the intensity of the national feeling which pervades the street may be gathered from the fact that yesterday morning a thoughtless member of the Stock Exchange, who offered some United States sixes on sellers' option, was instantly hissed down by the members of the board, and three resonant cheers were called for and given for Major Anderson.

It is of course impossible to foresee, at the present time, what shape the war will take. In a commercial point of view, much depends on the course of the Border States. If Virginia secedes and the other border slave States follow, the war will probably be long and disastrous. All the Western banks whose circulation is secured by unwise deposits of border slave State stocks must go to pieces; for these stocks, after secession, will hardly be worth twenty-five cents on the dollar. In this event, the contest being one between slave States on one side and free States on the other, it would in all probability involve accidents which could not but interfere with the regular production of cotton, rice, tobacco and the other Southern staples. Again, the difficulties which must arise, in any case, with regard to the navigation of the Mississippi, will be greatly aggravated if Tennessee and Kentucky secede. Indeed, at the present moment, it seems difficult to conceive any arrangement by which the free navigation of the river by the Northwestern States could under these circumstances be satisfactorily secured. The internal trade of the border slave States would in any event be gravely disturbed, and their usual product of wheat, tobacco, &c., placed in jeopardy.

If, on the other hand, the border slave States should remain faithful to the Union, the prospect, in the opinion of our moneyed men, is, that the war would be short. The Gulf States, they seem to think, could not successfully contend against the power of the North backed by Virginia, Kentucky, Missouri, Tennessee, North Carolina and Arkansas. Want of means would speedily compel a peace. In this event, therefore, our mercantile community do not think that trade would be fatally injured. A severe blow would be inflicted upon the seaport towns of the Gulf States, which would of course be blockaded by the fleets of the United States; but the planters would find an outlet for their cotton through Northern ports, and would not suffer very materially. It is not understood that an invasion of the Gulf States by Northern troops is contemplated in any quarter, and there is therefore no reason to apprehend that the culture of cotton would in this case be impeded or disturbed.

So far as the city of New York is concerned, the outbreak of civil war must be regarded as cancelling the debts due by people in the seceding States to our citizens. No accurate guess can be formed as to the amount of this indebtedness. It may amount to thirty—it may amount to sixty millions of dollars. No data exists upon which a plausible estimate can be based. The aggregate sum is certainly very large, and its repudiation—which war is sure to involve—must lead to serious embarrassment in mercantile circles, and to a large number of failures among houses in the Southern trade. This loss of money will, moreover, be followed by a loss of trade. Pending the war, no safe trade can be carried on between New York and the seceded States. Even after the establishment of peace, the poverty of the South, and probable though futile efforts to establish direct trade with Europe, will delay, for some years, the restoration of old commercial relations. The first victims of the war will thus be the men and the firms which have been most conspicuous in upholding the rights of the South. It must not be supposed, however, that the failure and obliteration of our great Southern houses will involve the ruin of the city of New York. This great metropolis is the natural and inevitable outlet for two vast productive regions—the cotton producing region of the South and the food producing region of the West. When one fails the other almost invariably comes to our rescue. New York prospers most when—as was the case in 1856 and 1860—both regions pour their products freely into its harbor. But New York continued to increase and multiply in years when the cotton crop failed; it did not decline in 1858 and 1859, when the West had no food to send us, and could not afford to buy any goods. Now the South fails us, but the West is supplying this city with an unprecedented amount of business. Our receipts and exports of food are double the average at this season, and while houses in the Southern trade—which, owing to the poverty of the West since 1857, are the leading houses in the city—complain of utter stagnation, our Western jobbers are doing a better business than they ever did before. There is reason to suppose that the West will, throughout the war, continue to have a large surplus of food to export through New York, and will need enough goods to give employment to our importers and jobbers. Whatever shape the war may take, the United States are pretty sure to retain command of the sea; so long as that is safe, the best harbor in America cannot well suffer for want of trade.

New points crowd upon the mind in connection with the unprecedented events which are occurring. We shall take them up from time to time. Meanwhile it may be well to notice that the actual outbreak of hostilities at Charleston gives a living import to the commentary on the law of treason delivered some months since by Judge Smalley, in this city. It is well that our merchants should understand the subject. From this time forward any citizen of the United States who supplies arms, or munitions of war, or food, or coal, or intelligence, or money to the communities which are at war with this country renders himself liable to the pains and penalties of treason. Any attempt to negotiate bonds of the Confederate States would be regarded as treason by the United States, and would be punished accordingly. If, as rumor states, factories in Connecticut are engaged in supplying arms to the Confederate government, the companies and their agents are all guilty of treason. Express companies and other carriers who carry such arms or other articles constituting "aid and comfort" are similarly liable to prosecution. Merchants in the West sending food down the Mississippi fall into the same category, and incur the penalties of the act. It is understood that an example will shortly be made by one of the new district attorneys with a view to afford our mercantile community a fair warning.

The import trade of the port last week was light, as was expected; the export of produce, like that of last week, considerably in excess of the average at this season. We may fairly expect a continuance of large food exports throughout the spring and early summer months. The following are the comparative Custom House tables of the trade of the port for the week and since January 1:—

IMPORTS.

For the Week.	1859.	1860.	1861.
Dry goods	$3,461,936	1,692,104	1,260,072

The banks continue to gain specie from abroad and from California; nearly two millions came to hand since last Monday. Within the past day or two, however, large sums have been paid into the Sub-Treasury on account of the recent award of Treasury notes, so that no increase may be shown in the statement to be made public to-morrow. Last Monday the specie average shown was $41,785,535, an increase of $297,250 from the preceding week. At the corresponding date last year, the banks held $27,690,132 in coin. There is no present probability that the reserve in our banks can fall considerably below forty millions, and it is possible that it may swell to fifty. The necessities of the government must cause the speedy disbursement of the funds now accumulated in the Treasury. Under ordinary circumstances, a supply of coin might be expected from the South during this and the next two or three months. It is generally supposed that the outbreak of war will prevent the usual remittances this season. The bank loans last Monday stood at $122,113,495—an increase of $1,160,331 from the preceding statement. At this date last year the loans averaged $130,600,731. Last week's increase was due to the award of $3,000,000 of 6 per cents, a large portion of which was immediately hypothecated with the banks. It is possible that the Treasury note award on Tuesday last may have enabled some of the banks to increase their loans still farther. They are too low for profit by several millions.

Money continues a drug. At 4 per cent any amount can be borrowed on good material, and at 4½ a 5½ the best paper passes without difficulty. Long paper and names not strictly first class range from 6 to 7 a 8. The amount of capital now lying idle in this city is quite unprecedented, yet is increasing daily. No one seems to have courage to embark in any speculation or commercial enterprise. The only hope capitalists seem to entertain is based on the probable wants of the government. Now that it is established that the republic is not going to be allowed to fall to pieces without a struggle, people are ready to lend the government any amount.

Foreign exchange closed very dull for yesterday's steamers. The rates are about 107 a ⅛ for bankers' bills on London and 105¾ a 106¾ for commercial bills; for francs, 5.27½ a 5.30. We hear of a sale of a million of francs by one house at 5.30. The market does not look as though higher rates were likely to prevail. With the opening of navigation we shall have increased exports of produce at this port, which will give an increased supply of exchange; while, on the other hand, the Morrill tariff and the outbreak of war are calculated to curtail importations and so to diminish the demand. Whether bills will again fall to the specie importing point is a question upon which financiers differ. Much will depend upon this year's cotton crop. If the war leads to a general neglect of the crop, so as to diminish it materially, our exports will be so much the less, and in anticipation of the event bills will rise. If, on the other hand, the progress of hostilities does not interfere with the cultivation of cotton, there is reason to suppose that the curtailment in our imports may preserve the balance of trade in our favor, and that from time to time bills may decline to the point which renders it profitable to send gold from London to New York.

The following table shows the course of the stock market during the past week and month:—

	Mch. 9.	Mch. 16.	Mch. 23.	Mch. 30.	Apl. 6.	Apl. 13.
Missouri 6's	65	66¼	66½	66¾	63	58½
N. Y. Central	78	78⅝	78⅝	76⅜	76½	72¾
Reading	42¾	41	44½	44⅜	42	35
Erie	32½	32¾	32	32	29¾	24
Michigan Central	56⅝	58	58	58	55⅜	49
South. guarant'd	36½	37⅛	38⅝	39	35⅝	32
Illinois Central	79	81⅝	82	81⅝	77⅜	68
Galena	70¼	71	72⅜	73	71½	63¼
Rock Island	57¼	58	59	57⅜	54⅜	48⅝
Toledo	34	35	38	36	33⅛	29
Panama	114½	116½	116½	117	115	110
Hudson River	44½	45	45¼	46⅜	42⅜	39½
Pacific Mail	83¼	86	86¼	85⅜	83	77

The market has fallen during the week, as was natural, in consequence of the outbreak of war. By and by, perhaps, when people's minds become used to the idea of hostilities, the stocks in Northern railway companies will improve. The stocks of the border slave States decline, on the apprehension that Virginia may secede and the others may follow, in which event these stocks would not be worth much. Pacific Mail has declined heavily, partly in consequence of revelations with regard to the decayed condition of the boats on the Pacific, and partly from an idea which seems to be firmly entertained in some quarters that these boats are to be the first victims of the privateering enterprises of the seceded States.

Dated New York, April 8, 1861.

NOTICE TO TAXPAYERS.—OFFICE OF THE COMmissioners of Taxes and Assessments, No. 32 Chambers street, New York, January 1, 1861.—Notice is hereby given that the Assessment Rolls of Real and Personal Estate of the city and county of New York, for the year 1861, will be opened on Monday, the 14th instant, for public inspection, and will continue open until the 30th day of April next inclusive. All taxpayers are earnestly requested to call and examine the same, in order that any errors in the assessments may be corrected. Also all persons entitled, by law to reduction on their assessments, by reason of being clergymen or for military services, and also literary and charitable institutions, by law exempt from taxation, are requested to make application for such reduction or exemption previous to the closing of the rolls on the 30th day of April.

The following section of the act of April 14, 1859, is published for the information of taxpayers:—

Section 10. During the time the books shall be open for public inspection, as heretofore provided, application may be made by any person considering himself aggrieved by the assessed valuation of his real or personal estate, to have the same corrected. If such application be made in relation to the assessed valuation of real estate, it must be made in writing, stating the grounds of objections thereto, and thereupon the Commissioners shall examine into the complaint, and if in their judgment the assessment is erroneous, they shall cause the same to be corrected. If such application be made in relation to the assessed valuation of personal estate, the applicant shall be examined under oath by the said Commissioners, who shall be authorized to administer such oath, or any of them, and if in their judgment the assessment is erroneous, they shall cause the same to be corrected, and fix the amount of such assessment as they may believe to be just, and declare their decision thereon within thirty days after such application shall have been made to them. No reduction shall be made by the Board of Supervisors of any assessment on real or personal estate imposed under this act, unless it shall appear, under oath or affirmation, that the party aggrieved was unable to attend within the period prescribed for the correction of taxes, by reason of sickness or absence from the city. (Laws of 1859, chapter 302, section 9.)

PIONEER CONCERT ROOM OF THE WORLD.

The mighty events in the world's history are recorded oft by some sculptured dome, and the fame of great heroes, statesmen and benefactors carried down to coming times upon marble tablets, but the MELODEON,
539 BROADWAY,
Needs not the assistance of the sculptor or the architect to perpetuate its memory.
It needs no princely dome, no monumental pile, no stately pyramid whose towering height shall pierce the stormy clouds and rear its lofty head to heaven to tell posterity its fame, or the present generation where the
CHEAPEST AND BEST CONCERT HALL IN AMERICA can be found.
No revolving glasses or mirrored seats obstruct the view, or magnify the effect of the most lovely galaxy of young ladies ever concentrated upon any stage in the world. The seats are comfortable and all that the patrons desire. There is no aping of English or other foreign airs, but the accommodations furnished are such as suit our most polished society. The company engaged are COSMOPOLITANS,
and the house, the seats, the stage, the performance, and in fact the whole arrangements, are peculiarly AMERICAN.
No questions are asked of performers when they engage as to their nationality, the proprietor firmly believing that every country in the world can produce talent.
No copying of foreign names or airs, but the best entertainment ever furnished to an audience rendered every night at the MEDICAL.

AFFLICTED RESTORED—IGNORANCE EXPOSED—Fallacies unmasked.—Dr. LARMONT'S Paris, London and New York Medical Adviser and Marriage Guide, informs the debilitated and diseased, including those who are ignorant of the cause of their ill health and who have been disappointed in their physician, of the most certain and convenient mode of cure. Mailed for $1 by RICHARDSON, No. 1 Vesey st.; DEXTER & CO., 113 Nassau st., N. Y.; and JOHNSON, 70 State st., Chicago, or the author, 647 Broadway, up stairs. Hours of treatment, 9 A. M. to 6 P. M. and 7 to 9 Thursday eve.

AN IMPORTANT WORK—A GUIDE FOR THE MARried, or those contemplating it.—The afflicted, debilitated or diseased should not marry or adopt any treatment till they have informed themselves of the truth only found in Dr. LARMONT'S Paris, London and New York Medical Adviser and Marriage Guide. Mailed for $1 by RICHARDSON, No. 1 Vesey street; ROSS & TOUSEY, 121 Nassau street, New York, and PETERSON, 306 Chestnut street, Philadelphia. The doctor cures all such affections, recent or long standing, expeditiously and privately, as for years past, at 647 Broadway, up stairs.

A CARD TO LADIES.—DR. VANHEEKEREN, 643 Broadway, attends exclusively all female complaints by medical and surgical treatment. Imperial pills, $1.

DR. WARD, 12 LAIGHT STREET, CORNER OF CANAL street, treats all female diseases with unparalleled success. His great benefactor—monthly pills, $1 per box—sent to any address.

DR. WARD, 12 LAIGHT STREET, CORNER OF CANAL street, is daily consulted confidentially in certain diseases, with complete success. Office open till 10 P. M.

DR. CORBETT, MEMBER OF THE NEW YORK UNIversity Medical College, has removed from 19 Duane street to 22 Centre street, near Chambers, having a private entrance at No. 5 City Hall place, where he can be consulted on certain diseases. His offices, three in number, are so admirably arranged that patients never come in contact. The victims of imposition, or those who have been unfortunate in their selection of a physician, can call with the certainty of receiving honorable treatment. N. B.—See Dr. C.'s diploma in his office. Consultations strictly confidential.

DR. HUNTER HAS FOR THIRTY YEARS CONFINED his attention to diseases of a certain class in which he has treated no less than fifty thousand cases without an instance of failure. His great remedy, Dr. Hunter's Red Drop, cures certain diseases when regular treatment and all other remedies fail; cures without dieting or restriction in the habits of the patient; cures without the disgusting and sickening effects of all other remedies; cures in new cases in less than six hours. It roots out the poisonous taint the blood is sure to absorb unless the remedy is used. It is $1 a vial, and cannot be obtained genuine anywhere than at the old office, No. 3 Division street. Book for nothing, that treats of the evil effects of early abuse.

DR. COOPER, 14 DUANE STREET, MAY BE CONsulted on all diseases of a certain nature. Twenty-eight years exclusively devoted to these complaints enables him to warrant a cure in all cases. The victims of misplaced confidence in medical pretenders can call, with a certainty of being radically cured, or no pay.

DR. RALPH.—OFFICES 129 CROSBY STREET. HOURS 10½ to 2 and 6 to 9. Sundays excepted.

PROFESSOR RESTELL, 160 CHAMBERS STREET, can be consulted as usual, and medicines sent by mail to all parts of the United States.

The best, most talented and versatile company organized.
The exclusion of boys, whose presence is always ignored by gentlemen.
The suppression of a free list and consequent absence of dead heads, the worst drawback upon the success of any place of amusement for gentlemen.
The quiet and order which always prevail.
The freedom extended to patrons to enjoy themselves as they see fit.
The genteel character of the visitors.
The superior quality of the refreshments served.
The length of the performance.
The privacy those who elect can enjoy, though surrounded by hundreds of people.

THE WAR.

In actual possession of the fort, while Messrs. Chesnut and Manning came over to the city, accompanied with a member of the Palmetto Guard, bearing the colors of his company. These were met at the pier by hundreds of citizens, and as they marched up the street to the General's quarters the crowd was swelled to thousands. Shouts rent the air and the wildest joy was manifested on account of the welcome tidings.

After the surrender a boat with an officer and ten men was sent from one of the four ships in the offing to General Simons, commanding on Morris Island, with a request that a merchant ship or one of the vessels of the United States be allowed to enter and take off the commander and garrison at Fort Sumter.

Gen. Simons replied that if no hostilities were attempted during the night, and no effort was made to reinforce or retake Fort Sumter, he would give an answer at nine o'clock on Sunday morning.

The officer signified that he was satisfied with this and returned. This correspondent accompanied the officers of General Beauregard's staff on a visit to Fort Sumter. None but the officers were allowed to land, however. They went down in a steamer and carried three fire engines for the purpose of putting out the flames. The fire, however, had been previously extinguished by the exertions of Major Anderson and his men.

The visitors reported that Major Anderson surrendered because his quarters and barracks were destroyed, and he had no hope of reinforcements. The fleet lay idly by during the thirty hours of the bombardment, and either could not or would not help him; besides, his men were prostrate from over exertion.

There were but five of them hurt, four badly, and one, it is thought, mortally, but the rest were worn out.

The explosions that were heard and seen from the city in the morning were caused by the bursting of loaded shells. These were ignited by the fire, and could not be removed quick enough. The fire in the barracks was caused by the quantities of hot shot poured in from Fort Moultrie. Within Fort Sumter everything but the casemates is an utter ruin. The whole thing looks like a blackened mass of ruins. Many of the guns are dismounted. The side opposite the iron battery of Cummings Point is the hardest dealt with. The rifled cannon from this place played great havoc with Fort Sumter. The wall looks like a honeycomb. Near the top is a breach as big as a cart. The side opposite Fort Moultrie is honeycombed extensively, as is that opposite the floating battery.

Fort Moultrie is badly damaged. The officers' quarters and barracks are torn to pieces. The frame houses on the island are riddled with shot in many instances, and whole sides of houses are torn out.

The fire in Fort Sumter was put out and recaught three times during the day.

Dr. Crawford, Major Anderson's surgeon, is slightly wounded in the face. None of the Carolinians are injured.

Major Anderson and all his men are yet in Fort Sumter. I approached near enough to the wall to see him bid adieu. In addition to this conversations were had which have been repeated to me.

A boat was sent from the fort to-night to officially notify the fleet at the bar that Major Anderson had surrendered.

It is not known when the Carolinians will occupy Fort Sumter, or what is to be done with the vanquished.

Every one is satisfied with the victory, and happy that no blood was shed.

In the city, after the surrender, bells were rung and cannon fired.

CHARLESTON, April 14, 1861.

The steamer Isabel is now steaming up and will take General Beauregard to Sumter, which will be turned over by Major Anderson to the Confederate States. Major Anderson and his command, it is reported, will proceed to New York in the Isabel.

CHARLESTON, April 14—P. M.

Major Anderson and his men leave to-night in the steamer Isabel, at eleven o'clock, for New York.

It was a thrilling scene when Major Anderson and his men took their formal leave of Fort Sumter.

WASHINGTON, April 14, 1861.

Mr. Wiley, of New York, had an interview with the President to-night. He left Charleston on Friday night, and says he saw the battle during that day. He says there was not an interval of two minutes between the firing on both sides after Major Anderson opened his fire, which was not until about seven o'clock A. M., two and a half hours after the Morris, Sullivan and James islands batteries had been pouring into Fort Sumter.

Mr. Wiley says Major Anderson worked his guns actively all day, until six o'clock Friday evening. The Charlestonians were surprised at it, in view of the small number of men in the place.

Mrs. Doubleday received a despatch to-day that the report that Capt. Doubleday was killed in Fort Sumter was not true. She is in great distress in consequence of the report that he was insane and in irons, but at the same time expressed indignation at the idea of surrendering the fort.

IMPORTANT FROM MONTGOMERY.

Fort Pickens Reinforced—Arrest of a Lieutenant of the United States Navy and Seizure of His Despatches—The Surrender of Fort Sumter, &c., &c.

MONTGOMERY, April 13—P. M.

Fort Pickens was reinforced last night.

Major Chambers, of the Alabama army, has arrived here from Pensacola, bringing Lieutenant Reed Werden, of the federal navy, as prisoner of war. [There is a mistake in the name of the officer arrested. See annexed note from Lieut. Werden.—ED. HERALD.] He was bearer of despatches to Fort Pickens and the federal fleet off Pensacola bar. He is held by the Secretary of War, who sent a detachment to arrest him.

The Lieutenant has been compelled to give up to the Secretary of War his despatches from Lieutenant Slemmer to the government at Washington. The Attorney General's opinion is requested as to the law in his case. He violated his promise to report to General Bragg, and carried in secret despatches to Fort Pickens, showing to General Bragg other despatches, and failing to report himself on his return.

Despatches from Governor Pickens to the Secretary of War here were read by the Clerk of the War Department from the executive buildings, in presence of President Davis and his Cabinet.

Seven guns were fired in honor of the victory, and there is great rejoicing in all circles.

It is understood that Charleston harbor is blockaded.

The news of the surrender of Fort Sumter was received with immense cheering by the people of this city.

Great crowds are gathered in the streets to-night, and the Confederate and Palmetto flags are flying everywhere. Cannon are firing, the bells ringing, and great rejoicing is manifested everywhere.

[LIEUT. REED WERDEN NOT A PRISONER OF WAR.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

I have to request you to correct a statement which appeared in your paper of this morning, reporting from Montgomery that I had been taken there from Pensacola as a prisoner of war. I have never been at Pensacola, and am now attached to the steam frigate Minnesota, at the Charlestown Navy Yard, Massachusetts. Your obedient servant,

REED WERDEN.

SUNDAY EVENING, April 14, 1861.

IMPORTANT FROM VIRGINIA.

The Proceedings of the Virginia State Convention on the Surrender of Fort Sumter.

RICHMOND, Va., April 13, 1861.

The Virginia State Convention reassembled to-day.

In Committee of the Whole the first three sections of the proposed amendments to the constitution were adopted without material amendment.

A new section, offered by Mr. Wise, providing that compensation be made in all cases where property "in persons held to service or to labor" has been or may be taken for the public use, as in impressment, &c., was adopted.

The fourth section was then adopted.

The fifth section, prohibiting the importation of slaves, was taken up.

Numerous amendments to it were offered, and finally it was adopted, with an amendment providing that nothing herein contained shall apply to the Southern States which have or may declare their separation, in case their separation be acknowledged and continued.

The debate then turned exclusively upon the surrender of Fort Sumter.

Messrs. Carlile and Early deprecated the action of South Carolina in firing, and expressed devotion to the Stars and Stripes.

Leading secessionists replied, and applauded the gallantry of South Carolina, and maintained that, whatever the Convention might do, the people would now carry the State out of the Union.

The committee here rose, when a communication was received from Governor Letcher, enclosing a despatch from Governor Pickens, dated Charleston, to-day.

The despatch gives an account of Friday's bombardment of Fort Sumter, and says that not a man on our batteries is hurt. It adds: "Fort Sumter was furious in its fire on us. Our iron battery did great damage to the fort on its southern wall. Our shells fell freely into the fort, and the effect is supposed to be serious, as they are not firing from the fort this morning. Our battery dismounted three of the largest of the columbiads of the enemy. We will take the fort, and can sink the fleet, if they attempt to force their way up the channel. If they attempt to land elsewhere we can whip them. We have now nearly seven thousand of the best troops in the world, and a reserve of ten thousand on the railroads. War is commenced, and we triumph or we perish. Please let me know what Virginia will do."

To this Governor Letcher stated that he replied that the Convention would determine.

Mr. Wysor offered a resolution, in view of the late information, recommending the people of Virginia at once to unite in defence of their institutions and make common cause with the Confederate States.

Without taking action on this resolution the Convention adjourned.

It was openly stated in debate that the Southern army would march through Virginia to the North and that thousands would join them.

Mr. Early said this would be invasion and should be repelled.

THE COURSE OF OUR CIVIL WAR.

SUCCINCT ACCOUNT OF THE LEADING EVENTS.

SUDDEN MOVEMENTS OF THE ADMINISTRATION—ACTIVITY IN MILITARY AND NAVAL CIRCLES—ENLISTMENTS AND EMBARKATIONS IN THE METROPOLIS—EXCITEMENT IN THE SOUTH—CHRONOLOGICAL SKETCH OF THE OCCURRENCES PRECEDING THE WAR, ETC., ETC.

Now that civil war is upon us, with all its terrible reality, and the reduction of Fort Sumter is still fresh before the public, we have deemed it advisable to prepare, for the information of our readers, a regular and succinct account of the various occurrences that have gradually led to the fiery denouement of Friday and Saturday last. We have no doubt that such a synopsis of these important events will, at the present juncture, be acceptable to the entire community.

It is unnecessary to go any further back than to the events of a few weeks. The close of the month of March was not marked by any activity on the part of the federal government, or by any threatening demonstrations by the secessionists of South Carolina. On the contrary, several Cabinet councils were held at Washington, and, according to all the reports that transpired, a decision had been come to for the evacuation of the beleaguered garrisons of Forts Pickens and Sumter. This design of the government, having been repeated by the press throughout the country, soon gained confidence, and people began to look forward to a peaceable solution of the very grave questions which were perplexing the country.

SUDDEN NAVAL AND MILITARY MOVEMENTS.

It was not until the beginning of the present month that the federal administration began to evince a warlike disposition. On the 2d of April despatches from Washington announced that the army and navy were suddenly being put on a war footing, and the knowing ones alleged that the movements looked towards Spain, and that it grew out of the designs of that government on the neighboring island of St. Domingo. So firmly was this opinion imprinted on the public mind that an officer of the navy declared it as his opinion that a rupture would occur with Spain in less than thirty days from the beginning of the month. Orders were issued from the Navy Department to several vessels to hold themselves in readiness for immediate service. Among other ships of war, the Powhatan, whose crew had been discharged on the 1st of April, was ordered to reship her full complement immediately and prepare for sea. Movements were now on foot indicating the speedy development of the governmental policy. Greater activity prevailed in the army and navy than had been known since the war with Mexico. Troops were placed on board ship with sealed orders, all the vessels of war on foreign stations were ordered home, and the supervisors of the various navy yards were directed to use their best efforts in making ready every available vessel for sea.

EXCITEMENT IN THE SOUTH.

These formidable movements on the part of the administration could not fail to arouse the vigilance of the seceded States, and more especially of South Carolina. Some leading Southern men at once declared that the armaments in preparation were intended to coerce the South; and the reports from Washington that ships were to be sent to blockade the harbor of Charleston and the mouth of the Mississippi met with ready credence. Those who were in the secrets of the administration openly declared that the country would soon see whether the government had a policy or not. Meanwhile the most ominous silence prevailed in official circles, and the real intentions of the government could only be gathered from the events which were being daily developed.

The excitement in the South, consequent on the sudden movements of the administration, was wide and intense. In the city of Charleston, and throughout South Carolina, the most undisguised uneasiness prevailed. The hesitancy and delay of the government in evacuating Fort Sumter led them to believe the reports that secret operations were in progress for its ultimate relief. Acting upon this surmise, the strategic defences of the city were made as perfect as military skill and exertion could make them, and the South Carolinians, resting on their arms, awaited the result. Among the mass of the people the excitement was no less intense. On the 4th of April all kinds of rumors got into circulation: among others that Fort Sumter would be attacked in a few days, and that the attack would be made from the forts. Nothing but a fight or an unconditional surrender of the fortification would be tolerated. Advices from Montgomery of the 6th inst. directed that the supplies from the city to Major Anderson should be cut off, and communication between the fort and federal authorities forbidden, and, for the last time, Captain Talbot left with despatches for Washington.

SERIOUS ASPECT OF AFFAIRS.

The appearance of things now really began to be very gloomy; the prospect of danger was imminent, and men commenced to prepare for the worst. As soon as an attack upon Forts Sumter and Pickens became probable, the President received a number of telegraphic exhortations from leading politicians in all parts of the North and West, urging him not to surrender anything to the seceders. That the government did not intend to do so was clearly to be seen in the continued activity in fitting out transports and ships of war, and in the moving and centralization of United States troops. At the end of the first week in April there was nothing to be heard of but the movements of troops in the city of New York. At Forts Hamilton and Lafayette, and on Governor's Island, the note of warlike preparation was continually heard. At the Brooklyn Navy Yard extra men were put on duty to hasten the completion of the steam sloop-of-war Powhatan, and the frigates Roanoke, Wabash, Perry, Savannah and Potomac, and the coast guard fleet. Gunpowder, shot, shell, and all the other destructive agents of war, were transported from one place to another in immense quantities, giving great significance to other operations.

SUPPOSED RELIEF OF FORT PICKENS.

In consequence of the invariable silence of the administration, nothing positive had as yet transpired as to the destination of the troops and vessels which were being so actively prepared for some important service. About this time reports were received from Texas, setting forth that Gov. Houston was in a precarious position from the daring incursions of Indians and Mexicans on the Texan frontier, and, as in the case of St. Domingo, people began to console themselves that the expedition was to check those outrages, so anxious were they that the bolt should fall upon the heads of any but their own brethren. But the activity in the federal navy yards pointed to operations against some great fortification, and as it was very generally confessed that Sumter would have to be surrendered, all eyes were turned to Fort Pickens, Pensacola, as most likely to be the destination of the fleet. New rumors at once got into circulation that troops would, in such a case, be sent from South Carolina to the assistance of General Bragg, who was investing Fort Pickens. Despatches from Pensacola at the same time stated that Bragg, with an army of nearly six thousand Confederate States troops, was ready for immediate action should any attempt be made to reinforce the fort. The precise condition of things inside of Fort Pickens was not known, but it was thought that its stock of provisions was nearly exhausted, and its garrison inadequate to meet the great Southern army now besieging it.

FORT SUMTER AGAIN.

The popular mind had scarcely settled on this point when the whole community was thrown into another fever of excitement by the most startling news from Washington. A portion of the war vessels fitted out at New York was ordered to proceed forthwith to Charleston, and to victual Fort Sumter peaceably, if possible, or by force if necessary. Supplies were to be thrown into that stronghold at all hazards. Major Anderson was directed, in the event of the federal vessels being opposed by the secessionists, to open his batteries. Such, in brief, was the government programme for Charleston harbor. Our reports from that point confirmed the statement that the supplies of the garrison from the city had been cut off. Intense excitement prevailed there on the receipt of this news. Five thousand men were ordered out, the batteries were strengthened, and every preparation made to repel the federal forces.

THE ACTIVE EXERTIONS OF THE GOVERNMENT.

To meet the emergency caused a corresponding activity in all the dock yards, armories and military depots throughout the North. The arsenals of Troy and Watertown were never so fully occupied for many a year. The creaking of blocks, the clang of hammers and the hum of midnight labor resounded through every manufactory of arms.

In a few days orders were issued from Washington to have the Wabash, Vincennes and Savannah at New York, and the Jamestown at Philadelphia, detailed for immediate service. Everything pointed to the culmination of the events which were so long trembling in the balance. Numerous large transports were employed by the government for the conveyance of soldiers and war materiel, and the signs of the times betokened that the administration was preparing for a long and bloody struggle. Within ten days from the first of April over eleven hundred men were sent from Fort Hamilton and Governor's Island. The recruiting offices in the city were daily engaged in enrolling men for the federal service, and the drill sergeant on Governor's Island found that his berth was no longer a sinecure. On the 6th of April the frigate Powhatan was ready for sea, and with her armament of ten heavy guns and four hundred men prepared to sail as convoy to the transports Atlantic, Baltic and Illinois. On the 8th the Atlantic sailed with Barry's battery (four guns and ninety-one men), four hundred soldiers and a large store of supplies. The same morning the steam cutter Harriet Lane, Captain J. Faunce, eight guns and one hundred men, sailed for Charleston harbor. Late at night the transport Baltic, with twenty surf boats, stores and two hundred recruits from Governor's Island, and the transport Illinois, with five hundred cases of muskets, stores, three hundred soldiers, and the steaming Freeborn, sailed from this harbor. On the whole, besides the Powhatan, eleven vessels were ordered to be got in readiness, with an aggregate force of 235 guns and 2,400 men. There was now not the slightest doubt that the first blow of the rival forces would be struck at Sumter, and consequently the whole nation turned their eyes to that locality.

NAVAL FORCE SENT TO CHARLESTON.

The following list embraces the names, with armaments and troops, of the fleet despatched from this city and Washington to Charleston harbor:—

Vessels.	Guns.	Men.
Sloop-of-war Pawnee	10	200
Sloop-of-war Powhatan	11	275
Cutter Harriet Lane	5	96
Steam transport Atlantic	—	858
Steam transport Baltic	—	100
Steam transport Illinois	—	300
Steam tug Yankee		ordinary crew
Steam tug Uncle Ben		ordinary crew
Total number of vessels		8
Total number of guns (for marine service)		26
Total number of men and troops		1,380

Nearly thirty launches, whose services are most useful in effecting a landing of troops over shoal water, and for attacking a discharging battery when covered with sand and gunny bags, have been taken out by the Powhatan and by the steam transports Atlantic, Baltic and Illinois.

THE OFFICIAL NEWS IN CHARLESTON.

On the evening of the 8th instant the State authorities of South Carolina received official notification that supplies would be furnished to Anderson at all hazards. Immense final preparations suited to the emergency were at once commenced. Orders were issued to the entire military force of the city to proceed to their stations. Four regiments of a thousand men each were telegraphed for from the country. Ambulances for the wounded were prepared; surgeons were ordered to their posts, and every preparation made for a regular battle. Among other portentous signs the community was thrown into a fever of excitement by the discharge of seven guns from Citadel square, the signal for the assembling of all the reserves ten minutes afterwards. Hundreds of men left their beds, hurrying to and fro towards their respective destinations. In the absence of sufficient armories, the corners of the streets, public squares and other convenient points formed places of meeting, and all night long the roll of the drum and the steady tramp of the military and the gallop of the cavalry resounding through the city, betokened the close proximity of the long anticipated hostilities. The Home Guard corps of old gentlemen, who occupy the position of military exempts, rode through the city, arousing the soldiers, and doing other duty required by the moment. Hundreds of the citizens were up all night. A terrible thunder storm prevailed until a late hour, but in no wise interfered with the ardor of the soldiers—merchants, lawyers, doctors, students of divinity, clerks, mechanics and laborers joining shoulder to shoulder for common defence. The Seventeenth regiment, eight hundred strong, gathered thus in one hour, and left for the fortifications at three o'clock on the morning of the 9th. The union and enthusiasm of the whole of the citizens were like that of a single man, so determined were they to support each other to the uttermost.

COMMENCEMENT OF HOSTILITIES.

The long anticipated blow fell upon Fort Sumter like the hammer of Thor at half-past four o'clock on Friday morning last. A formal demand for the evacuation of the fort was made upon Major Anderson at two o'clock P. M. on the 11th of April. To this demand, sent by Gen. Beauregard, the gallant Major made this firm though sententious reply:—

> I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your communication demanding the evacuation of this fort, and to say in reply thereto that it is a demand with which I regret that my sense of honor and my obligations to my government prevent my compliance.

From the moment that this answer transpired every lingering hope of peace expired. Each party now set itself to complete the offensive preparations for the collision which had now become inevitable. Troops and ammunition, in addition to the vast numbers already there, were poured into the city of Charleston from every available point, and the batteries along the coast were further strengthened and reinforced. Thousands of people of both sexes were collected along the shore, on the housetops and in adjacent houses, in a state of terrible suspense, awaiting the first sounds of battle. At last they came. At twenty-seven minutes past four the guns of old Moultrie belched forth the challenge to Anderson. Nothing loth, the gallant Major promptly responded with three of his barbette guns. Thereupon the batteries on Cummings Point and Mount Pleasant, with the floating battery, joined the cannonade, and opened a brisk fire of shot and shell on the beleaguered fort. Major Anderson did not reply to these new assaults, except at very long intervals, until between seven and eight o'clock, when he opened a terrible fire upon Moultrie and the Stevens iron battery with two ranges of his heavy guns. The cannonading continued with great earnestness all day until nightfall, when there were signs that the garrison of Sumter was becoming less regular and frequent in its fire. Nevertheless, the bombardment was continued on both sides until seven o'clock P. M., when a violent rain storm set in, causing a suspension of hostilities from that time until eleven o'clock, with the exception of an occasional gun from either side. It was estimated that, up to this time, no less than eighteen hundred balls and shells were discharged. Although the cannonade ceased during the night, a bomb was sent into Fort Sumter from all the secession batteries every twenty minutes, as it was said, to keep Major Anderson "wide awake."

The fire on Fort Sumter was resumed with great violence on Saturday morning—Major Anderson returning the iron compliments with great gallantry and regularity. Between eight and nine o'clock the woodwork in Fort Sumter was set on fire by a red hot shot from Fort Moultrie. At a little after eleven o'clock an explosion took place in Sumter, and dense volumes of smoke arose from the works. The federal flag still floated amid the progressing ruin; but the fury of the conflagration in the garrison prevented the use of the guns, as all the men were occupied in putting out the fire, and thus added to the embarrassment of the brave little band. The shells from Fort Moultrie and the batteries along the coast still continued a hot and uninterrupted fire on the devoted fort, the guns of Anderson having been almost completely silenced, not by actual conquest, but for the want of men to work them and attend to the extinguishing of the fire at the same time.

SHATTERED CONDITION OF SUMTER.

At length Fort Sumter became so entirely disabled by the continual hail of shot and shell and the progress of the flames inside, that Major Anderson was compelled to hoist a signal of distress. Previously, the United States flag had been shot away, and was gallantly rehoisted on a pole. Three United States vessels, which arrived off the port in the morning, were on hand, apparently about to take part in the cannonading; but for unexplained reasons, which will no doubt be properly investigated by the government, did not move from their anchorage or fire a gun. During the height of the conflagration General Beauregard sent a boat to Major Anderson with offers of assistance; but before it could reach the fort the flag of truce was run up. Another boat then put off, containing ex-Governor Manning, Major D. R. Jones and Col. Charles Allston, to arrange the terms of surrender, which were the same as those offered on the 11th inst. These were official. They stated that all proper facilities would be afforded for the removal of Major Anderson and his command, together with the company arms and property and all private property, to any post in the United States he might elect. The terms were not, therefore, unconditional. Major Anderson stated that he surrendered his sword to General Beauregard as the representative of the Confederate government. General Beauregard said he would not receive it from so brave a man. He says Major Anderson made a staunch fight, and elevated himself in the estimation of every true Carolinian.

The scene in the city of Charleston on receipt of the news was intensely exciting. The people were perfectly wild with enthusiasm, and men on horseback galloped through the streets proclaiming the intelligence of the rendition of the fort amid tremendous cheers and applause. The captured officers were carried through the city amid great excitement and enthusiasm.

THE DEFENCE OF FORT SUMTER,

Under the straitened circumstances in which its garrison was placed, reflects the highest honor and credit on the gallant Major in command and the noble band of heroes that so faithfully served under him. The fort itself was by no means complete, for though it was designed for an armament of one hundred and forty pieces of ordnance, there were no more than seventy-five mounted and in position at the time of the attack. The war garrison of the fort is also six hundred men, but there were no more than seventy-one army men in the fortification, all told, when the bombardment was begun by Fort Moultrie. The following is a list of the officers and men, including thirty laborers, who assisted at the guns:—

THE GARRISON IN THE FORT.

Names.	Rank.	Regiment or Corps.	Original Entry into Service.	Born in.
R. Anderson	Major	1st Art'y	July 1, 1825	Ky.
S. W. Crawford	Ass. Sur'n	Med. Staff	March 10, 1851	Penn
Abner Doubleday	Captain	1st Art'y	July 1, 1842	N. Y.
Truman Seymour	Captain	1st Art'y	July 1, 1846	Vt.
Theodore Talbot	1st Lieut	1st Art'y	May 22, 1847	D. C.
Jeff. C. Davis	1st Lieut	1st Art'y	June 17, 1848	Ind.
J. N. Hall	2d Lieut	1st Art'y	July 1, 1859	N. Y.
J. G. Foster	Captain	Engin'rs	July 1, 1846	N. H.
G. W. Snyder	1st Lieut	Engin'rs	July 1, 1856	N. Y.
R. K. Meade	2d Lieut	Engin'rs	July 1, 1857	Va.
Officers				9
Band				15
Artillerists				55
Laborers				30
Total				109

It will thus be seen that the force at the disposal of Major Anderson was totally inadequate to the protracted and proper defence of the work. For with the few men under his command he could bring but very few of his guns into play; and as the working of heavy artillery is a very fatiguing operation, it is not surprising that the men were so frequently worn out as occasionally to render a partial cessation of firing from the fort an absolute necessity. Besides, it has been shown that the rations of the garrison had been reduced to a very low ebb, insomuch that starvation would have done the work of cannon in two or three days more. But had it not been for the unexpected disaster of a fire in the fort, the possibility is that the Major would have been able to hold out until the fleet could have made an effort to reinforce him. Taking all the facts together, it does not appear possible that a more gallant defence could have been made. The anxiety of the officers and men must also be borne in mind. For several months past they have been in expectation of the attack or the evacuation of the fort; and as the offensive preparations of their assailants were perfected they had to nerve themselves to the work which was before them, not knowing when it would begin. Not a man in that fort had a moment's rest from the time that the first shot was fired on Friday morning until the work was surrendered on Saturday afternoon. They must have been on the qui vive from two o'clock P. M. of Thursday, when the ultimatum of General Beauregard was sent to Sumter, until actual hostilities commenced. The contest thus may be said to have lasted fully forty-eight hours, for during all that time the men in Sumter were under continual excitement from the want of rest, heightened considerably by the terrific discharge of shells to keep them awake all Friday night.

THE ACTION OF THE FLEET,

In arriving off the harbor and not making any effort to come to the rescue of the garrison of Sumter, has been variously commented upon. In Charleston the indignation of the people was plainly manifested against the commanders of the United States vessels that were off the bar for not coming to the assistance of Major Anderson when he made signals of distress. The very soldiers on Morris Island, it is said, jumped on their guns cheering for Anderson and groaning for the fleet. The reason given by some for the inaction of the ships is that they were unable to get over the bar in time to be of useful assistance, and that when they did get over it was entirely too late to be of any actual service. The entrance to the harbor of Charleston is at all times a very difficult matter for ships on hostile intent. To those who are acquainted with the topography of the harbor, the idea of vessels passing through channels lined by the heaviest batteries is preposterous. All the offers that have been made to reinforce the fort were founded on a total ignorance of the difficulties by which such a task would be beset. With a force of steamers always on the alert, outside, and the means of telegraphic communication at hand, the approach of a squadron would be the signal for the opening of a most destructive fire like that which almost demolished Sumter. For the benefit of those who may desire to examine more particularly the topography of Charleston harbor and the numerous fortifications which skirt the coast, we publish the accompanying map of the city and harbor of Charleston, with the positions of the various forts and batteries.

AFTER THE SURRENDER.

Immediately after the surrender of Fort Sumter several fire companies were sent to put out the fire, which was still raging there. Two thousand shots were fired altogether, and what is most remarkable is that nobody was hurt. The delight of the populace at the success of so bloodless a battle baffled description. The men cheered till they were hoarse, the ladies waved their handkerchiefs, and the bells rang out their merriest peals. It is said that Major Anderson expressed himself much pleased that no lives had been sacrificed, and said that to Providence alone is to be attributed so congratulatory a result. Fort Sumter has been taken possession of by the Confederate troops.

THE VESSELS OF THE FLEET,

consisting of the Pawnee, Powhatan, Harriet Lane and three steam transports, already named above, are still off the harbor, and negotiations were in progress for the removal of Major Anderson and his late garrison. All proceedings on this head had been laid over by mutual consent.

THE SOUTHERN SOLDIERS.

The physique of the Southern soldier is not so contemptible as some Northerners are inclined to suppose. One of our correspondents writes that, while sitting in front of his hotel, he casually counted, in the space of ten minutes, sixteen gentlemen over six feet high, and two others who stood six feet four in their stockings. These would perhaps prove dangerous customers in a close encounter.

THE NEWS IN WASHINGTON.

The report of the attack on Sumter created great excitement in Washington; but, amid all the hubbub and confusion of politicians, President Lincoln was calm and composed. The first question he asked a Western Senator on Saturday night was, "Will your State support me with military power?" He will doubtless issue a call for aid to the several Governors of the republican States.

The announcement that Major Anderson had surrendered, and was the guest of General Beauregard, was in due course communicated to the President. The latter was not surprised, but, on the contrary, remarked, "The supply vessels could not reach him, and he did right." When he was told that the report was that nobody was injured in Fort Sumter, he seemed very much gratified, and remarked that he regretted that Major Anderson could not be supplied, as that was all he needed.

Thus was begun and terminated one of the most remarkable bombardments of modern times, if we regard its brief duration, the numbers respectively engaged, the courage displayed on both sides, the absence of serious casualties, and other correlative facts.

THE NEWS IN THE NORTH.

THE EXCITEMENT IN NEW YORK.

The news of Saturday night, conveyed to the community by the successive issues of extras from the newspaper offices during the afternoon and evening, intensified public feeling to a high pitch of excitement. The conflicting statements, reports and rumors which began to spread at a later hour in the night, together with bogus extras detailing the burning of Charleston city, the reinforcement of Fort Sumter, and similar absurd stories, which the people were compelled to entertain in the absence of more positive and definite information, only added fuel to the fiery anxiety which filled the public mind, and rendered it all the more eager for the news of yesterday's paper. This impatient desire to glean the first possible and reliable intelligence in regard to the latest movements at the seat of war was well depicted in every quarter of the city yesterday forenoon. Newsmen received orders over night from their customers not to fail in furnishing them with the earliest copies of the HERALD, and thousands of our citizens were impelled to rising from their beds at an earlier matutinal hour than usual, in their eagerness to secure a copy of the morning paper. The news stands and depots, from the moment that the first sheets arrived until an advanced hour in the forenoon, were besieged by anxious, impetuous throngs, who, thrusting, pushing and shoving, were urging the newsdealer to take the few coppers held in outstretched hand between thumb and forefinger—the scene presenting that bustle, without the order, to be witnessed on the letter list day at the Post Office.

In the early dawn of morning the scene in the lower streets of the city, in the neighborhood of the news agents and HERALD office, was one of unusual activity. Newsboys rushed about in every direction—towards the cars and towards the ferries—bearing huge bundles of papers over their shoulders and under their arms, while eager purchasers waylaid them at every corner or pursued them around the streets.

As the day advanced, and the community became posted about the news, all the various details, bearings and likely results of the great events of the past few days were fully canvassed. The breakfast table, the cars, the ferry boats and all places of public conveyance and resort, at once became animated with the universal theme of conversation, and at every corner some individual was to be seen, with his face half buried in the newspaper, greedily absorbing its intelligence.

No one seemed to be satisfied with his own opinions about the news, each one questioning his neighbor as to his views, and little conversaziones were extemporized in localities where a crowd collected.

At the HERALD office during the morning the anxious inquirers for even later particulars than those published in the paper presented themselves in large numbers, and the sidewalk in front of the doorways and counting room of the office were clogged to a degree that greatly incommoded ingress and egress. Those who had been unable to obtain papers up town came also in search of the HERALD at the office, and the large presses of the establishment were kept running until within a few minutes of one o'clock in the afternoon to supply the immense demand. The entire edition printed yesterday numbered 135,600 copies—exceeding by over 30,000 the issue on the receipt of the news of the great international contest for the championship of the P. R.—a fact unparalleled in the history of daily journalism.

At the hotels similar scenes of excitement were to be witnessed. At the New York Hotel—characteristic for Southern patronage—the Southern feeling and sentiment were well illustrated. Groups were gathered in the vestibule, hallway and reading rooms, discussing the news in a most animated manner, while others lounged around upon the sofas and settees, poring over the columns of the paper. The action of General Beauregard was fully sustained in all their views, but they did not fail to give the gallant Anderson due praise for his heroic and intrepid conduct, considering that in him their Southern brethren had found

"A foeman worthy of their steel."

THE SCENE AT THE FIFTH AVENUE HOTEL.

The news of the fall of Fort Sumter and the surrender of Major Anderson created great excitement at all the principal hotels yesterday; but the scene at the Fifth Avenue Hotel during the whole of yesterday afternoon was exciting in the extreme. Between two and three hundred gentlemen were collected in the spacious vestibule of this fine hotel discussing with great earnestness and much gesticulation the exciting news from the seat of war. Politicians, lawyers, doctors, drummers and a large number of the do nothing class were collected together; and though all were evidently much excited, and each one had something to say, the conversation was more remarkable for its evident earnestness than—as is often the case in similar gatherings—for its loudness. From the remarks of many of the speakers it is very evident that a great change has lately taken place in the feelings of the community, who now think that Abraham Lincoln should be assisted with the whole force of the North. The opinions expressed as to the reliability of the despatches received from Charleston were, as may be supposed, very varied. Many persons affected to disbelieve the whole, and many bets were freely offered that not a gun had yet been fired. Others, again, thought that the main points were correct, though even those ought to be received with caution, as the Charlestonians had the control of the telegraph at the other end.

IMPORTANT FROM ALBANY.

Thirty Thousand Men to be Tendered to the Government—Great Excitement About the News, &c.

ALBANY, April 14, 1861.

The war news creates intense excitement here, and keeps the city in constant fever. Since an early hour this afternoon large crowds of citizens have been gathered on the streets in the vicinity of the telegraph office, and the hotels are filled with people eager to gather the latest news.

The Knickerbocker, taking advantage of the public feeling, has just issued an extra containing a column of balderdash, stating that the former news was all false, and publishing what purports to be despatches received to-day by General Wool, saying that Fort Sumter had been reinforced; that the war ships have crossed the bar, the floating battery been sunk, the Custom House blown up and the citizens of Charleston leaving in dismay in all directions.

Among the republican members of the Legislature much feeling is displayed, and there is talk of introducing a bill to-morrow, appropriating $2,000,000 to arm the volunteers for the general government. The general feeling among all classes seems to be in favor of Major Anderson.

All kinds of rumors are afloat, among them that Mr. Lincoln has called for 12,000 men from the State of New York, and that Governor Morgan has important despatches from the President, asking aid from the State.

Mr. Lincoln's reply to the Virginia Commissioners is decidedly dissatisfactory to a majority of the republicans and democrats, the former regarding it as not determined enough for the crisis, and the latter receiving it as an indication of civil war, while destitute of the merit of boldness or decision.

ALBANY, April 15—1:20 P. M.

The news of the surrender of Fort Sumter has caused the most profound sensation here. The Albany Express issued an extra this morning containing the latest despatches of last evening. The most intense excitement has prevailed all day. Squads of men have been standing around the news offices all day, reading the bulletins, and at the hotels commenting upon the reports.

There is a general incredulity in regard to their truth. Many look upon it as a sham fight, got up for the purpose of giving Major Anderson an excuse to surrender.

The Governor and the State officers met in the Executive Chamber this morning, and decided to tender to the United States government thirty thousand troops at once. They held another meeting this afternoon, which was attended by the Military and Finance Committees of both houses, and this assemblage discussed the matter pro and con for some time.

The question of punishing those who had been aiding and abetting the secessionists was talked over, and the Governor stated that he had received letters from many leading citizens of New York, recommending action of that kind, but the sense of the meeting was plainly against it.

After talking over national affairs at much length, they appointed a committee, consisting of the Attorney General, Adjutant General and two others, to draft a bill for the enrollment of thirty thousand men, and providing for laying a two mill tax, or so much thereof as may be necessary for that purpose. The bill to be introduced into the Assembly to-morrow, with an appropriate message from the Governor.

The democrats present withheld their approval for the present, stating that they desired to see the bill before committing themselves fully to it, but at the same time approved tendering the militia. This looks as though we are to have warm times.

This move will lengthen out the session, and keep us here the most of the week.

The war spirit has been fairly aroused, and no one can tell where it will end. The future is enshrouded with a black cloud.

Several of the leaders of the Breckinridge party are here, and are preparing to call a State Convention at once. They have all written to John C. Green, asking for a meeting of the State Committee immediately, and the assembling of a State Convention as early as the 1st of May, for the purpose of pledging the party in the State to support President Lincoln in the enforcement of the laws and upholding the constitution. This they look upon as a stroke of policy, in view of the course of the Regency party, and the action of their late fossil convention at Tweddle Hall.

The Douglas men appear to be the only ones that do not counsel carrying the war into Africa.

The gathering clouds point to a storm of no minor magnitude.

The telegraph office was crowded this evening, and hundreds were standing in the streets, eager to catch all the news that might come. There was the greatest anxiety to know whether the despatches in the Express were correct. When it was found that the worst had not been told, there was a general expression in favor of lending all the aid needed to the government.

THE WAR FEELING IN PHILADELPHIA.

PHILADELPHIA, April 14, 1861.

Governor Curtin went to Washington last night in response to a despatch from the government.

Third and Chestnut streets have been the scene of excitement all day. This afternoon the streets were blocked up by crowds reading extras, and conversing about the news. Two men expressing disunion sentiments were assaulted and took refuge in a drug store. Several arrests were made by the police.

The reported project to seize Fort Delaware causes much excitement. It is now commanded by Captain Porter, of Virginia, who, it is reported, designs to resign if Virginia secedes.

Fort Mifflin, in Pennsylvania, is a dilapidated affair, now in charge of Serjeant Bromley and one man.

The naval magazine, adjoining Fort Mifflin, is in charge of Mr. Bunker, a veteran of sixty years service.

The surrender of Fort Sumter was received with almost universal disbelief, but being now confirmed, the excitement is most intense.

Volunteers are making preparations, so as to be ready to respond instantly to the call of the Governor or President. Two new regiments are forming, to consist of a thousand men each, to arm which a portion of the State appropriation will be required.

Our volunteers never have been properly supplied with arms, and frequently new companies have to borrow guns to parade with from others better supplied.

Mayor Henry offers his services as colonel of a regiment, if the call is made by the government.

THE WAR NEWS AT ERIE, PA.

ERIE, April 14, 1861.

The news from the South creates the most intense excitement.

Men of all parties express their determination to stand by the government and fight for the supremacy of the United States flag. All our volunteer companies will offer their services to the Governor to-morrow.

THE WAR NEWS AT COLUMBUS, OHIO.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, April 14, 1861.

Adjutant General Carrington has just issued orders carrying into effect the military laws just enacted by the General Assembly of Ohio, and providing for 6,000 regular militia, besides the militia of reserve of not less than 35,000 men, to be subject to immediate transfer into the regular force.

The regular militia has been organized into twenty-five regiments, which, when upon a war basis, would make 25,000 men. On Saturday his office was thronged by persons eagerly inquiring for the news and offering their services, irrespective of party, to support the general government.

THE WAR NEWS AT DETROIT.

DETROIT, April 14, 1861.

The war news creates profound sensation. There is a unanimous sentiment that the position assumed by the government must be maintained.

An impromptu meeting of the members of the Detroit bar and influential citizens was held yesterday afternoon, composed of all parties, and resolutions were passed denouncing the rebellious organization called the Confederate States, and declaring their intention to stand by the old flag at all hazards.

Another meeting of citizens will be held to-morrow night.

THE WAR NEWS AT CHICAGO.

CHICAGO, April 14, 1861.

News of the surrender of Fort Sumter created profound sensation here. It was at first discredited, and when later despatches arrived, confirming the previous reports, the excitement was intense.

All parties express a determination to uphold the government in enforcing the laws and maintaining the supremacy of the national flag.

Governor Yates will issue a proclamation to-morrow, calling an extra session of the Legislature, to meet at Springfield a week from next Tuesday.

THE NEWS AT PROVIDENCE.

PROVIDENCE, April 14, 1861.

The newspaper can scarcely supply the demand for extras issued.

Men of all ages and vocations are offering to enlist.

THE NEWS IN CONNECTICUT.

HARTFORD, April 14, 1861.

The war news causes the most intense excitement in this city and vicinity. Many of the despatches received here to-day were not credited till the HERALD of this morning arrived, which threw aside all doubt as to their correctness. A Mr. Fox preached a sermon on the war to-night, in the Methodist church, in which he said that it was not a war of politics, but a death struggle between law and anarchy.

THE EFFECT AT WORCESTER.

WORCESTER, Mass., April 14, 1861.

The news from Charleston has produced the greatest excitement here. This evening there is a vast crowd around the Spy office discussing the news, which is given them in extras.

Men of all parties are ready to sustain the government.

RECRUITING IN BOSTON FOR THE NAVY AND ARMY.

[From the Boston Traveller, April 12.]

On Monday an office for the shipping of seamen for the navy was opened on Hanover street by Mr. Moses Ingalls, a well known shipping agent, who is acting under the directions of Captain Robert Handy, of the navy. Notice having been pretty extensively given, some hundreds of persons appeared on that day for the purpose of enlisting, and up to this time the work of enlistment is going on as rapidly as possible.

When the office closed yesterday ninety-three men had been enlisted, most of whom were first class seamen, and by to-morrow night the number will be 130 or 140. Among the applicants have been a very large number of young men from the country, who have been out of work and are willing to take up with anything that offers.

From the crowds around the doors those within the office from time to time let in the healthiest looking men, who are one by one sent to the room of Capt. Handy, and examined by him. If found suitable they are at once enlisted, furnished with clothing and sent to Charlestown.

Every time a door opens dozens beg to be let in, and so great is the pressure that policemen are employed to keep them back. Large numbers of those from the country are entirely destitute of money, and some have already returned home, having no means to pay for board, without having been able to get inside the office.

The enlistment will probably continue several weeks, as it is understood that two thousand men, in all, are wanted immediately for the navy, and it will take that time to get the required number, although offices are also open in other cities. So particular are the recruiting officers, that a man who had served in the British navy as an able seaman was rejected because he had lost a finger on the left hand.

The recruiting office for the army, in Portland street, is doing about the usual amount of business. The enlistments since July last have averaged about seventy per month, and thus far this month the proportion is about the same, although the number of applicants has been somewhat larger, as many who have been rejected at the naval shipping office afterwards apply here.

Only a small proportion of the applicants are found suitable. This winter, in consequence of the scarcity of work, an unusually large proportion of Americans have been enlisted—many of them shoemakers—and they have generally been an excellent class of men. While in New York there are many German applicants, and few Irish, the reverse is the case here; but many of that nation are rejected because they do not come up to the required standard—five feet four and a half inches.

Were the government to reduce the standard two inches, the number of enlistments would be doubled; and the fact that this is not done indicates that there is no desire to greatly increase the army.

Heretofore recruits have been allowed to enter such arm of the service as they chose, but two days ago a circular was received requiring that enlistments must be unconditional. The men who are enlisted are kept in the office till a squad of ten or twelve is made up, when they are sent to Governor's Island, New York, and from thence to the several stations.
